St. Austin's School, as featured in The Pothunters, is the setting for twelve delightful early Wodehouse stories. The familiar ingredients and some of the same characters are present: cricket and rugby, loom large, school colours are gained, tricks are played, exams avoided, revenge wreaked upon enemies, and the honour of School and House upheld. A nostalgic look at English public school life at the turn of the twentieth century, made enjoyable today by the young Wodehouse's gentle humour and witty turn of phrase. Pillingshot was annoyed. He was disgusted, mortified, no other word for it. He had no objection, of course, to Mr Mellish saying that his work during the term, and especially his Livy, had been disgraceful. A master has the right to say that sort of thing if he likes.
