Longpre,2011-01-24 Time hasn't dimmed my memories of our ranch on Petty Creek Montana and it seems necessary to recount tales of living there I don't know why except that the country slides into focus now as a place out of time and worthy of mention in a foreign world that developed around it So begins the introduction to A Place In Time the story of a man's journey from an unrestrained youth as he hunted and survived in the natural rugged mountain world of the Indian to his desperate attempt to hold onto that life as the world changed around him His mountain environment was filled with colorful characters each of them contributors to a kaleidoscope of intrigue humor and adventure both on the ranch and in surrounding areas A reciprocal dependence of men and animals is vividly portrayed through the horses who trailed the mountain world with him Some accounts of animal companions end tragically in their vigorous existence all of them touch sympathies of those who harbor an appreciation of the natural world The story's owner is older now but very much alive The account of his life and location however are distant in the experience of most in today's world His life surpasses the boundaries of his own region bringing the reader to confront in the end the painful changes that have been inflicted upon his wilderness world A Place In Time is a vibrant account of life the way many would like it to be again the way most never knew it was

Face[t]s of First Language Loss Sandra G. Kouritzin,1999-04-01 This book contributes to the understanding of first language loss in both immigrant and indigenous communities in at least three ways First it provides insight into the process of language loss and the factors contributing to it Second it attempts to define from an insider perspective what it means to lose a language Third it analyzes the perceived consequences of first language loss in terms of social academic emotional and economic factors an approach previously lacking in research on language loss Most studies of first language loss are impersonal even when they tell emotional stories This polyphonic book about language loss and imperfect learning of heritage languages tells the inside story Easy to read and yet academic it gives voice to five different storytellers who relate the histories of their first language loss and analyzes themes from 21 life history case studies of adults who had lost their first languages while learning English The stories in this book make a compelling argument that heritage languages should be preserved that ESL should be about developing bilinguals not English monolinguals Important reading for researchers practitioners and graduate students in ESL and bilingual education multicultural education cultural studies and sociology this book will also interest qualitative researchers as an example of a unique form of both doing and writing research

Playing the Hand We Are Dealt Michael Jackson, 2024-10-01 The relationship between literature and life can be construed as a counterpoint of fate and freewill Rather than equating fate to the hand we are dealt which is reducible to the social or familial environments into which we are born this book explores the idea of fate through the books that shape our lives and under whose influence we write Writing in this sense is seen as beyond its utility of making meaning It is a way of recovering agency in the face of overwhelming experiences In juxtaposing factuality and fiction the author makes a case for a radically empirical approach to human experience
