

Microphones

Microphones for use with the TCD 310 Mk II must be fitted with DIN plugs and have an impedance between 100 and 800 ohms.

Plug the microphones into the sockets marked MICROPHONES in the middle of the front panel. Connect the left channel mic. to the left socket and the right channel mic. to the right socket.

Copying tape

Connections

To copy programs from one tape to another tape you must connect the TCD 310 Mk II to another cassette recorder or an open reel to reel tape recorder. There are three ways of doing this:

1. Connect both tape recorders to a amplifier/receiver. This assumes that the amplifier/receiver has facilities for connecting two tape recorders.
2. Connect the TCD 310 Mk II direct to the other tape recorder by means of the enclosed DIN lead and a special copying lead (sometimes called a reversal lead) that you can buy from your radio dealer. See the drawing.

Some tape recorders (e.g. the Tandberg 6X and 6000X) have a special output for copying tape. If you use this kind of output you will not need the special copying lead.

3. Connect the TCD 310 Mk II direct to the other tape recorder by means of two phono leads. The leads should be plugged into the sockets marked OUTPUT (or LINE OUT) on the machine used for playback, and plugged in to the sockets marked INPUT (or LINE IN) on the machine used for the new recording.

Inserting a cassette

Inserting a cassette

1. Press the POWER button in and then the STOP button.
2. Press the EJECT button and the cassette compartment will spring open.
3. Insert the cassette right into the compartment as shown. The full reel should be nearest to the words "MODEL TCD 310 Mk II", on the top panel.
4. Lock the cassette compartment by pressing the cover firmly down.

See page 2 for choice of cassettes.

Removing a cassette

1. Press the STOP button.
2. Press the EJECT button. The cassette compartment will spring open.
3. Remove the cassette and lock the lid.
