Between Emotion and Cognition Joseph Newirth,2003 Modern individuals often enter analysis because of a feeling of hollowness a deadened absence of aliveness meaninglessness and a sense of being alone in a world that seems otherwise exciting engaging and alive Joseph Newirth believes that these feelings reflect a disease of modern man that can be traced to a failure in the development of subjectivity Through a careful reading of theory and well reasoned presentations of case material Newirth vividly evokes the contemporary dilemma of the individual s lack of subjectivity The author positions this lack of subjectivity as a failure in the development of the unconscious an understanding that provides the foundation for the development of a two person theory of the unconscious Newirth proposes a neo Kleinian model of the unconscious the generative unconscious in contrast to the repressed unconscious of classical theory or the relational unconsciousness of interpersonal and relational theory He defines the generative unconscious as a source of creativity of apprehending and generating experience in terms of emotional meanings through the development of metaphors transitional experiences and poetic images Brilliantly illustrated with case material Choice Scholarly thoughtful and astute An excellent example of a seasoned clinician describing his own mature thinking about the clinical psychoanalytic enterprise and making suggestions regarding newer helpful ways for others to think about their patients Psychologist Psychoanalyst Newirth s conceptualization of the generative unconscious will help a new generation of clinicians struggling to treat the psychopathology of
