South African Education Department Exam Papers:

Education and climate change Samantha Govender, Mncedisi C Maphalala, Dumisani W. Mncube, 2025-06-15 The book highlights the critical yet often overlooked role of education in combating climate change. It advocates for a transformative educational framework that integrates social emotional learning and interdisciplinary collaboration. Traditional education which focuses solely on factual knowledge is deemed insufficient. Instead, education should foster empathy, provide hands-on experiences, and encourage active engagement in climate solutions. The book outlines various ways education can drive climate action, such as raising awareness, preparing individuals for green jobs, empowering communities, and fostering innovation in higher education. It highlights the interconnectedness of climate change and education, particularly for marginalised populations, showing how quality education can enhance both mitigation and adaptation strategies while supporting Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) 4 and SDG 13. Key chapters discuss successful initiatives such as the Keep it Cool Climate Change Education (KIC CCE) project in South Africa and offer strategies for integrating climate change education into subjects like Natural Sciences and Geography. Ultimately, the book positions education as a strategic tool for promoting sustainable development and building climate resilience. New research findings presented in the book connect education to climate change, highlighting education as both a tool to address climate issues and a domain affected by these issues. The book integrates empirical evidence, innovative theories, and practical examples to ensure intellectual integrity and academic rigour. It introduces a unique framework that emphasises social emotional learning, action-oriented teaching, and interdisciplinary collaboration. Case studies such as the KIC CCE initiative in South Africa illustrate these concepts. The book critiques traditional models and advocates for transformative approaches to climate education, aligning with SDG 4 (Quality Education) and SDG 13 (Climate Action). It also highlights the significance of teacher preparedness, community empowerment, gender equality, and innovation, providing valuable insights for scholars, policymakers, and practitioners addressing the climate crisis.

Curricula, Examinations, and Assessment in Secondary Education in Sub-Saharan Africa World Bank, 2008-02-15 Economic and social changes, fast evolution of technology, and the growing importance of Internet services and international communications all these require secondary education providers to adapt what is taught and learned in schools. However, in Africa, the content of secondary curricula is in most cases ill-adapted to 21st-century challenges where young people are mobile, have access to more and instant information, and face health threats such as HIV/AIDS. In addition, implementation problems exist, and the time for instruction is often much less than what is required by the prescribed secondary curriculum. In Africa, there is a need to develop a secondary education curriculum adapted to the local economic and social environment but with internationally comparable performance indicators. This study analyzes that challenge, the quality of curricula and assessment, and their development processes in secondary education in Africa against the background of existing contexts, conditions, and ambitions on the one hand, and current pedagogical thinking on the other.

Wolhuter,2020-12-31 The argumentative point of departure of this scholarly book is the common conviction of specialists in the field of education in South Africa that the national education system is not at a satisfactory level in both the academic and the public discourse Such allegations are made and frequently stronger adjectives than non satisfactory are used Results of international test series in which South Africa has participated such as the 2015 TIMSS tests confirm the negative verdicts found in the public and scholarly discourse This book aims to argue that although the lack of performance could be attributed to a multiplicity of factors one factor that can make a difference in the achievement levels obtained by learners in schools is leadership The book demonstrates that a particular problem of both the scholarly and the public discourse on education in South Africa is an overtone of defeatism or resignation blaming all ills in the education system and educational institutions on historical legacies and or contextual factors such as socio economic deprivation in the catchment areas of schools or poor resources and infrastructure This collected work was inspired by a recently published spate of articles on top performing schools including top performing schools in rural communities in which it was demonstrated that good leadership can overcome such contextual and other challenges The book unpacks the issue of leadership in South African schools from a variety of perspectives thus contributing to the development of the scholarly discourse on Educational Leadership in South Africa The target audience of the book is scholars of Educational Leadership The research reported in the chapters draw on a wide range of methodologies including empirical survey research questionnaires and interviews critical literature surveys and the comparative method

Mandela's Kinsmen Timothy Gibbs, 2014

Mandela's Kinsmen is the first study of the fraught relationships between the ANC leadership and their relatives who ruled apartheid's foremost tribal Bantustan the Transkei In the early 20th century the chieftaincies had often been well springs of political leadership In the Transkei political leaders such as Mandela used regionally rooted clan schooling and professional connections to vault to leadership they crafted expansive nationalisms woven from these kin identities But from 1963 the apartheid government turned South Africa's chieftaincies into self governing tribal Bantustans in order to shatter African nationalism While historians often suggest that apartheid changed everything African elites being eclipsed by an era of mass township and trade union protest and the chieftaincies co-opted by the apartheid government there is another side to this story Drawing on newly discovered accounts and archives Gibbs reassesses the Bantustans and the changing politics of chieftaincy showing how local dissent within Transkei connected to wider political movements and ideologies Emphasizing the importance of elite politics he describes how the ANC in exile attempted to re-enter South Africa through the Bantustans drawing on kin networks This failed in KwaZulu but Transkei provided vital support after a coup in 1987 and the alliances forged were important during the apartheid endgame Finally in counterpoint to Africanist debates that focus on how South African insurgencies narrowed nationalist thought and practice he maintains ANC leaders calmed South Africa's conflicts of the early 1990s by espousing an inclusive nationalism that incorporated local identities and that Mandela's kinsmen still play a key role in state politics today Timothy Gibbs is a Lecturer in African History University College London Southern Africa South Africa Namibia Lesotho Swaziland Botswana Jacana
