The Imperial Army Project Douglas E. Delaney, 2018-01-25 How did British authorities manage to secure the commitment of large dominion and Indian armies that could plan fight shoot communicate and sustain themselves in concert with the British Army and with each other during the era of the two world wars What did the British want from the dominion and Indian armies and how did they go about trying to get it Douglas E Delaney seeks to answer these questions to understand whether the imperial army project was successful Answering these questions requires a long term perspective one that begins with efforts to fix the armies of the British Empire in the aftermath of their desultory performance in South Africa 1899 1903 and follows through to the high point of imperial military cooperation during the Second World War Based on multi archival research conducted in six different countries on four continents Delaney argues that the military compatibility of the British Empire armies was the product of a deliberate and enduring imperial army project one that aimed at standardizing and piecing together the armies of the empire while at the same time accommodating the burgeoning autonomy of the dominions and even India At its core this book is really about how a military coalition worked

Police, Military and Ethnicity Cynthia Enloe, 2024-12-06 This collection of essays describes and analyzes the ways in which government policymakers go about designing police forces and militaries The author includes both wide ranging comparative investigations of the dimensions of the state security phenomenon and specific case studies Dr Enloe uses the sociological concept of ethnicity to demonstrate how the armed forces in several nations have capitalized on racial and ethnic diversity to foster their own goals and those of the government and power elites She examines this idea by focusing on the ethnic factors involved in the evolution of the South African military the military ethnic connection in Malaysia and the role of the armed forces in the conflict in Ulster The author illustrates convincingly that not only individual citizens desire security but that nation states themselves are engaged in the same pursuit What often passes for or is justified in the name of citizen protection is in fact done to strengthen the state itself Militaries are recruited in ethnically skewed ways and increasing numbers of police forces throughout the world have military capacities not to enhance the security of private individuals but to protect the status quo of the central government and the nation's establishment Dr Enloe covers an assortment of countries within the framework of her central argument which is practically as well as theoretically significant Each chapter can be read on its own and all deal with currently salient political conditions
