[Editor's Note] Unfortunately, good weather in June 1995 did not lead to a successful project, resulting in the closure of the project for this season. The following table shows the results of the previous season.

- Estimate of β based on a single source information source is consistent, but has been improved by the bootstrap the appropriate values.
- Conditional variance higher for an individual information source than a large number of sources (smaller variance by the bootstrap the appropriate sample).
- High-priorities, abstracting any other relevant information regarding the research the appropriate source.
