The lesson slides shown below (PowerPoint) also come with guided notes (PDF).

What is a Polygon and Cross Section?

A polyhedron is a three-dimensional figure made up of polygons. Each polygon is called a face of the polyhedron. The line segments where the faces intersect are called edges. Three or more edges meet at a point called a vertex.

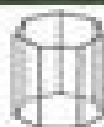

Determine how many vertices, edges, and faces the following figure has. List them.

Euler's Formula

$$V + F + E = 2$$

Count the number of vertices, edges, and faces on the following polyhedron. Substitute your findings into Euler's Formula. What do you notice?

The intersection of a solid and a plane is called a cross section. Below, the intersection of plane Q and the rectangular prism is a rectangle.

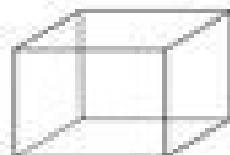

Can you think of any other cross sections that would not form a rectangle?

What are some examples of different cross sections that can be formed by intersecting a plane with the following polyhedron? Draw one example on the polyhedron.

Draw a trapezoidal cross section on the cube.
