Comaroff, 2015-11-17 As nation states in the Northern Hemisphere experience economic crisis political corruption and racial tension it seems as though they might be evolving into the kind of societies normally associated with the Global South Anthropologists Jean and John Comaroff draw on their long experience of living in Africa to address a range of familiar themes democracy national borders labour and capital and multiculturalism They consider how we might understand these issues by using theory developed in the Global South Challenging our ideas about developed and developing nations Theory from the South provides new insights into key problems of our time Colonial Cinema in Africa Glenn Reynolds, 2015-06-08 In recent decades historians and film scholars have intensified their study of colonial cinema in Africa Yet the vastness of the continent the number of European powers involved and irregular record keeping has made uncovering the connections between imagery imperialism and indigenous peoples difficult This volume takes up the challenge tracing production and exhibition patterns to show how motion pictures were introduced on the continent during the Scramble for Africa and the subsequent era of consolidation The author describes how early actualities expeditionary footage ethnographic documentaries and missionary films were made in the African interior and examines the rise of mass black spectatorship While Africans in the first two decades of the 20th century were sidelined as cinema consumers because of colonial restrictions social and political changes in the subsequent interwar period wrought by large scale mining in southern Africa led to a rethinking of colonial film policy by missionaries mining concerns and colonial officials By World War II cinema had come to black Africa Unpopular Sovereignty Luise White,2015-03-23 A truly satisfactory history of Rhodesia one that takes into account both the African history and that of the whites has never been written That is until now In this book Luise White highlights the crucial tension between Rhodesia as it imagined itself and Rhodesia as it was imagined outside the country Using official documents novels memoirs and conversations with participants in the events taking place between 1965 when Rhodesia unilaterally declared independence from Britain and 1980 when indigenous African rule was established through the creation of the state of Zimbabwe White reveals that Rhodesians represented their state as a kind of utopian place where white people dared to stand up for themselves and did what needed to be done It was imagined to be a place vastly better than the decolonized dystopias to its north In all these representations race trumped all else including any notion of nation Outside Rhodesia on the other hand it was considered a white supremacist utopia a country that had taken its own independence rather than let white people live under black rule Even as Rhodesia edged toward majority rule to end international sanctions and a protracted guerilla war racialized notions of citizenship persisted One man one vote became the natural logic of decolonization of this illegally independent minority ruled renegade state Voter qualification with its minutia of which income was equivalent to how many years of schooling and how African incomes or years of schooling could be rendered equivalent to whites illustrated the core of ideas about and experiences of racial domination White s account of the politics of decolonization in this unprecedented historical situation reveals much about the general processes occurring elsewhere on the African continent Botswana Directory ,1992 Guide to Microforms in Print ,2009 Setswana Home Language ,2014 Setswana home language ,2015
