NOTES

Two groups of players
One group outside the square
One group work inside the square
The inside players must receive a pass from outside and quickly combine with each other
Once each player has touched the ball, the middle team then pass out
Can you play one touch passing?

One keeper
Three forwards
Three servers
The three forwards must use combination play on each of the three balls in order to shoot at goal
The three balls come in from different angles
Can a different forward shoot on each team?

This practice is a progression to the previous one.
The game now starts 2v1 on the first ball that is played in by the coach.
Once this ball is completed, one of the servers pass into the forwards and then race onto the pitch to defend.
This makes the game a 3v2.

Finally the 3rd defender passes and runs onto the pitch to make a 3v3
The roles are reversed for the next game

The keeper for the blue team is given 5 balls.
The blue keeper starts the practice until the five balls have been played
This gives the blue team opportunities to receive the ball and look to use their movement and combination play in order to score.
If the red team win possession of the ball they pass the ball out of the pitch.

Once five balls have been played the roles are reversed.
