Challenges for the Democratisation Process in Tanzania Jonas Ewald, 2013 Tanzania has been independent in 2011 for 50 years While most neighbouring states have gone through violent conflicts Tanzania has managed to implement extensive reforms without armed political conflicts Hence Tanzania is an interesting case for Peace and Development research This dissertation analyses the political development in Tanzania since the introduction of the multiparty system in 1992 with a focus on the challenges for the democratisation process in connection with the 2000 and 2005 elections The question of to what extent Tanzania had moved towards a consolidation of democracy is analysed by looking at nine different institutions of importance for democratisation grouped in four spheres the state the political civil and economic society Focus is on the development of the political society and the role of the opposition in particular The analysis is based on secondary and primary material collected between September 2000 to April 2010 The main conclusion is that even if the institutions of liberal democracy have gradually developed in practice single party rule has continued manifested in the 2005 election when the CCM won 92% of seats Despite impressive economic growth poverty remains deep and has not been substantially reduced On a theoretical level this brings the old debate between liberal and substantive democracy back to the fore Neither the economic nor the political reforms have brought about a transformation of the political and economic system resulting in the poor majority gaining substantially more political influence and improved economic conditions Hence it is argued that the interface between the economic political and administrative reforms has not been sufficiently considered in the liberal democratic tradition Liberal democracy is necessary for a democratic development but not sufficient for democracy to be consolidated For that a substantive democratic development is necessary

Non-Governmental Organizations and Development David Lewis, Nazneen Kanji, Nuno S. Themudo, 2020-12-29. This book is an introduction to the wide ranging topic of non governmental organizations, NGOs and development, combining a critical overview of the main research literature with a set of up to date theoretical and practical insights drawn from experience in Asia, Europe, Africa and elsewhere. The revised second edition highlights the continuing importance of NGOs in development while fully engaging with the criticisms that their increased profile now attracts. It considers issues such as securitization, changing technologies and recent concerns about safeguarding, as well as going into more detail around topics such as market based development and social enterprise. The diversity of NGOs and their roles is discussed against the broader historical background of struggles for social justice in different societies as well as within the shifting ideological contexts of neoliberalism and populism. Using a broad range of short case studies of both successful and unsuccessful interventions, the authors analyze how interest in NGOs has both reflected and informed wider theoretical trends and debates within development studies. The book argues that NGOs are central to both development theory and practice and are likely to remain important actors for many years to come. This critical overview will be useful to students of development studies at undergraduate and master's levels in fields and disciplines as diverse as International Development Studies, International Relations, Geography, Anthropology, Global Studies, Politics and International Studies as well as general readers and practitioners.
