Transnational Neighbourhood Stephan Ehrig, Britta C. Jung, Gad Schaffer, 2022-10-13 Urban neighbourhoods have come to occupy the public imagination as a litmus test of migration with some areas hailed as multicultural success stories while others are framed as ghettos In an attempt to break down this dichotomy Exploring the Transnational Neighbourhood filters these debates through the lenses of geography anthropology and literary and cultural studies By establishing the interdisciplinary concept of the transnational neighbourhood it presents these localities whether Clichy sous Bois Belfast El Segundo Barrio or Williamsburg as densely packed contact zones where disparate cultures meet in often highly asymmetrical relations producing a constantly shifting local and cultural knowledge about identity belonging and familiarity Exploring the Transnational Neighbourhood offers a pivotal response to one of the key questions of our time How do people create a sense of community within an exceedingly globalised context By focusing on the neighbourhood as a central space of transcultural everyday experience within three different levels of discourse i e the virtual the physical local and the transnational global the multidisciplinary contributions explore bottom up practices of community building alongside cultural social economic and historical barriers

Religion and Power David Martin, 2016-04-08 There are few more contentious issues than the relation of faith to power or the suggestion that religion is irrational compared with politics and peculiarly prone to violence The former claim is associated with Juergen Habermas and the latter with Richard Dawkins In this book David Martin argues against Habermas that religion and politics share a common mythic basis and that it is misleading to contrast the rationality of politics with the irrationality of religion In contrast to Richard Dawkins and New Atheists generally Martin argues that the approach taken is brazenly unscientific and that the proclivity to violence is a shared feature of religion nationalism and political ideology alike rooted in the demands of power and social solidarity The book concludes by considering the changing ecology of faith and power at both centre and periphery in monuments places and spaces

Imaginary Cities Darran Anderson, 2017-04-06 How can we understand the infinite variety of cities Darran Anderson seems to exhaust all possibilities in this work of creative nonfiction Drawing inspiration from Marco Polo and Italo Calvino Anderson shows that we have much to learn about ourselves by looking not only at the cities we have built but also at the cities we have imagined Anderson draws on literature Gustav Meyrink Franz Kafka Jaroslav Hasek and James Joyce but he also looks at architectural writings and works by the likes of Bruno Taut and Walter Gropius Medieval travel memoirs from the Middle East mid twentieth century comic books Star Trek mythical lands such as Cockaigne and the works of Claude Debussy Anderson sees the visionary architecture dreamed up by architects artists philosophers writers and citizens as wedded to the egalitarian sense that cities are for everyone He proves that we must not be locked into the structures that exclude ordinary citizens that cities evolve and that we can have input As he says If a city can be imagined into being it can be re imagined as well The
