There are many types of the explanations of the term of cultural heritage and this phenomenon can be divided into material and spiritual parts. If one speaks about spiritual cultural heritage, one means the history of the nation, its language, traditions, customs, folklore, literature, music, religion, beliefs, etc. Material heritage is the result of the spiritual human activity; people's manner of thinking, acceptance of the world around and its phenomena. So, the brightest examples of the material heritage are museums, conservations and archives. Museums present information and valuable material evidence of the existence of the previous civilizations, and just previous generations and their achievements.
