decorated portable artefacts is less well understood How does the visual imagery found on decorated portable artefacts compare with other Neolithic imagery such as passage tomb art and rock art How do decorated portable artefacts relate chronologically to other examples of Neolithic imagery Using cutting edge digital imaging techniques the Making a Mark project examined Neolithic decorated portable artefacts of chalk stone bone antler and wood from three key regions southern England and East Anglia the Irish Sea region Wales the Isle of Man and eastern Ireland and Northeast Scotland and Orkney Digital analysis revealed for the first time the prevalence of practices of erasure and reworking amongst a host of decorated portable artefacts changing our understanding of these enigmatic artefacts Rather than mark making being a peripheral activity we can now appreciate the central importance of mark making to the formation of Neolithic communities across Britain and Ireland The volume visually documents and discusses the contexts of the decorated portable artefacts from each region discusses the significance and chronology of practices of erasure and reworking and compares these practices with those found in other Neolithic contexts such as passage tomb art rock art and pottery decoration A contribution from Antonia Thomas also discusses the settlement art and mortuary art of Orkney while Ian Dawson and Louisa Minkin contribute with a discussion of the collaborative fine art practices established during the project

Stone Fidelity Jessica Barker, 2020 Medieval tombs often depict husband and wife lying side by side demonstrating as in the words of Philip Larkin's poem An Arundel Tomb their stone fidelity This is the first book to address the phenomenon of the double tomb drawing the rich history of tomb sculpture into dialogue with discourses of power marriage gender and emotion and placing them in the context of ecclesiastical material culture of the time more broadly It offers new interpretations of some of the most famous medieval monuments such as those found in Westminster Abbey and Canterbury Cathedral as well as drawing attention to a host of lesser known memorials from throughout Europe In turn these monuments provide a vantage point from which to reconsider the culture of medieval marriage from wedding rings and dresses to the sacramental symbolism of matrimony and embodied ritual practices Whilst it is tempting to read these sculptures as straightforward expressions of romantic feeling the author argues that a closer look reveals the artifice behind the emotion the artistic religious political and legal agenda underlying the rhetoric of married love
