Florentina C. Andreescu, Michael Shapiro, 2014-09-25 This work is a critical intervention into the archive of female identity it reflects on the ways in which the Central and Eastern European female ideal was constructed represented and embodied in communist societies and on its transformation resulting from the political economic and social changes specific to the post communist social and political transitions During the communist period the female ideal was constituted as a heroic mother and worker both a revolutionary and a state bureaucrat which were regarded as key elements in the processes of industrial development and production She was portrayed as physically strong and with rugged rather than with feminized attributes After the post communist regime collapsed the female ideal's traits changed and instead took on the feminine attributes that are familiar in the West's consumer oriented societies Each chapter in the volume explores different aspects of these changes and links those changes to national security nationalism and relations with Western societies while focusing on a variety of genres of expression such as films music plays literature press reports television talk shows and ethnographic research The topics explored in this volume open a space for discussion and reflection about how radical social change intimately affected the lives and identities of women and their positions in society resulting in various policy initiatives involving women's social and political roles The book will be of interest to students and scholars of gender studies comparative politics Eastern European studies and cultural studies Citizenship in an Enlarging Europe B. Morell,2017-10-02 One of the main ideas behind this book was to trace continuities from the Soviet time to post Soviet Russia There are many similarities between Russia and Ukraine indicating such a continuation Russia and Ukraine had a lot in common in terms of culture language and history partly also because of their common origin After the dissolution of the Soviet Union however the two independent countries chose different routes of development This makes it possible to distinguish between the effects of politics reforms on the one hand and the impacts from the Soviet system on the other After some more or less chaotic development paths in the 1990s showing clear differences between the two countries and before the contemporary conflict broke out in Eastern Ukraine 2013 they had once again more similarities in terms of political leadership and policies in general The chapters in this book focus on Ukraine and on two regions in Russia Nizhny Novgorod and Archangelsk Contributors look at attitudes towards poverty and poor people strategies of the poor and policies against poverty This book was published as a special issue of the Journal of Contemporary Central and Eastern Europe

periods of transformation the turn of the 19th 20th century and the 20th 21st century Bringing together the parallels between the two great transformations it focuses on both the continuities and breaks and importantly it shows them from the grassroots point of view emphasizing the local factor Chapters show the international and transnational aspects of Russian women s agency of different spheres and different historical periods The book goes on to raise new research questions such as the evaluation and comparison of Soviet society and contemporary Russia from the point of view of gender and women s possibilities in society
