

After spending some time in the salty water, I came out and relaxed in the warm sun. Then I had a great idea. My brother and I could cover me up with sand. We hurriedly got to work. My mom wanted to take my picture, so I had to wait forever for her to get the camera ready. Finally, click went the camera. Then I got myself unburied, and ran to the water scattering sand all around me. After my swim, I grabbed a kite and flew it into the light blue sky.

At about 3 o'clock I was splashing in the sea again. For about half an hour I surfed the waves. After that I had fun going under water with my goggles on. The sun shone on the clear water. What a beautiful sight!

In the evening we were all hungry, so we went to a seafood restaurant that was packed with people. I had shrimp and French fries. The ice cream I had for dessert melted in my hands.

When we got back to the hotel, I looked over to the beach. I saw a beautiful sunset that faded quickly. I couldn't wait to go back again the next day.

A Sad Moment In My Life

One day during my summer vacation, while I was taking a walk in my garden, I came across a baby bird. It was a parrot and could not fly. I think it fell out of the nest and hopped into the garden. I picked it up and took it into my house.

At first, it was very scared of me and refused to eat when I tried to feed it. It took at least two whole days for it to realize that I did not mean to harm it. I would keep it in an open box in my sitting room. It used to sit on a twig that I had rested on top of the box and watch me moving around the house. Slowly, it got used to all the members of my family and would whistle happily the whole day.

I named my parrot Rio. I would feed it soft rice and bread dipped in water. It used to be hungry all the time. I think it was a male because it was very noisy. Rio was scared of new people who came to my house but not of us. He loved me the most and would hop on the ground and

Narrative as Writing and Literacy Pedagogy for Preservice Elementary Teachers Nancy A. Wasser, 2021-08-16 I just cannot write or I am not a good writer are familiar complaints from students in academia Many of them claim they cannot express themselves clearly in written text and their lack of this skill impedes them in their academic career In this book Nancy A Wasser argues that teachers can help solve this when they start viewing writing not as secondary to reading but as the equally important side of the same coin Those who cannot read will not be able to write Wasser explains how teaching and regular practicing of writing skills from an early age onwards helps children grow into students who are self aware of their voices By employing narrative as a process of learning to write and a way to read teachers can teach children the art of writing while also making children more aware of their own constructions of narrative Combining the focus on individual and group expression in writing lessons students can trace and reflect on their own life transformations through their writing process Good writers are not born that way but made through effort and practice Changes in curriculum may not only lead to better expressed citizens but also to more balance between teacher and children voices

Compilation from the Annual Reports of the Superintendent of Public Instruction of the State of Michigan Michigan. Department of Public Instruction,1897 As the Witnesses Fall Silent: 21st Century Holocaust Education in Curriculum, Policy and Practice Zehavit Gross,E. Doyle Stevick,2015-03-16 This volume represents the most comprehensive collection ever produced of empirical research on Holocaust education around the world It comes at a critical time as the world observes the 70th anniversary of the liberation of Auschwitz We are now at a turning point as the generations that witnessed and survived the Shoah are slowly passing on Governments are charged with ensuring that this defining event of the 20th century takes its rightful place in the schooling and the historical consciousness of their peoples The policies and practices of Holocaust education around the world are as diverse as the countries that grapple with its history and its meaning Educators around the globe struggle to reconcile national histories and memories with the international realities of the Holocaust and its implications for the present These efforts take place at a time when scholarship about the Holocaust itself has made great strides In this book these issues are framed by some of the leading voices in the field including Elie Wiesel and Yehuda Bauer and then explored by many distinguished scholars who represent a wide range of expertise Holocaust education is of such significance so rich in meaning so powerful in content and so diverse in practice that the need for extensive high quality empirical research is critical Th is book provides exactly that
