A SOCIAL LIFE

SOCIAL MEDIA DEPRESSION

(AWARD WINNING SHORT FILM)

The short film about social life has a good story that serves as an eye opener to all people who live life or who live their life in social media. People nowadays they are more conscious in making their social life well than the real life.

In my own view point about the short film, some people especially this generation, they tend to be someone or they work their ideal self in different social Media. They lost their selves in the worlds dreams, they been trying to find a way back to themselves. Online or in the front of computer, technology or internet we live the life we always dreamed of. With the rise of different social media networks we forget our life in reality. As it becomes more and more popular people tend to check it more frequently. We make importance of our social media presence and strives to live good life but it only appears in online image it doesn't show in our actually and everyday life. It looks at a new generation of career-focused people that are more obsessed with their online image than life itself. But in the end looking in our reflection of who we really are is the biggest disappointment because in the first place we neglect our true self, we are afraid to show off. We are trying to portray a perfect life online however that's not the reality.

Shimamura,2014-02-15 Largely through trial and error filmmakers have developed engaging techniques that capture our sensations thoughts and feelings Philosophers and film theorists have thought deeply about the nature and impact of these techniques yet few scientists have delved into empirical analyses of our movie experience or what Arthur P Shimamura has coined psychocinematics This edited volume introduces this exciting field by bringing together film theorists philosophers psychologists and neuroscientists to consider the viability of a scientific approach to our movie experience Making Movies Black Thomas Cripps,1993-05-20 This is the second volume of Thomas Cripps s definitive history of African Americans in Hollywood It covers the period from World War II through the civil rights movement of the 1960s examining this period through the prism of popular culture Making Movies Black shows how movies anticipated and helped form America s changing ideas about race Cripps contends that from the liberal rhetoric of the war years marked as it was by the propaganda catchwords brotherhood and tolerance came movies that defined a new African American presence both in film and in American society at large He argues that the war years more than any previous era gave African American activists access to centers of cultural influence and power in both Washington and Hollywood Among the results were an expanded black imagery on the screen during the war in combat movies such as Bataan Crash Dive and Sahara musicals such as Stormy Weather and Cabin in the Sky and government propaganda films such as The Negro Soldier and Wings for this Man narrated by Ronald Reagan After the war the ideologies of both black activism and integrationism persisted resulting in the message movie era of Pinky Home of the Brave and No Way Out a form of racial politics that anticipated the goals of the Civil Rights Movement Delving into previously inaccessible records of major Hollywood studios among them Warner Bros RKO and 20th Century Fox as well as records of the Office of War Information in the National Archives and records of the NAACP and interviews with survivors of the era Cripps reveals the struggle of both lesser known black filmmakers like Carlton Moss and major figures such as Sidney Poitier More than a narrative history Making Movies Black reaches beyond the screen itself with sixty photographs many never before published which illustrate the mood of the time Revealing the social impact of the classical Hollywood film Making Movies Black is the perfect book for those interested in the changing racial climate in post World War II American life Chemistry in Action: Making Molecular Movies with Ultrafast Electron Diffraction and Data Science Lai Chung Liu,2020-09-10 The thesis provides the necessary experimental and analytical tools to unambiguously observe the atomically resolved chemical reactions A great challenge of modern science has been to directly observe atomic motions during structural transitions and while this was first achieved through a major advance in electron source brightness the information content was still limited and new methods for image reconstruction using femtosecond electron diffraction methods were needed One particular challenge lay in reconciling the innumerable possible nuclear configurations with the observation of chemical reaction mechanisms that reproducibly give the same kind of chemistry for large classes of molecules The author shows that there is a simple solution that occurs during barrier crossing in which the highly anharmonic potential at that point in nuclear rearrangements couples high and low frequency vibrational modes to give highly localized nuclear motions reducing hundreds of potential degrees of freedom to just a few key modes Specific examples are given in this thesis including two photoinduced phase transitions in an organic system a ring closure reaction and two direct observations of nuclear reorganization driven by spin transitions The emerging field of structural dynamics promises to change the way we think about the physics of chemistry and this thesis provides tools to make it happen
