Gender and Land Tenure in the Context of Disaster in Asia Kyoko Kusakabe,Rajendra Shrestha,Veena N.,2015-06-30 This book explores an interdisciplinary field at the intersection of gender and development studies disaster and land tenure policy It is well known that women generally have weaker claims to land But how does that translate to increased vulnerability during disaster Using case studies from Asia this book argues that land tenure is a key factor in mitigating the impact of disasters on women The scale and frequency of disasters have been increasing in recent decades due to human impact on the landscape and climate Unsustainable farming and land management systems have increased environmental risks and social vulnerabilities However around the world the costs of disasters are disproportionately borne by women due largely to their reduced mobility and lack of control over assets In post disaster settings women s vulnerabilities increase due to gendered rescue and rehabilitation practices As such a gendered approach to land rights is critical to disaster preparedness and recovery

Our Land, Our Lives': Time out in the global land rush Kate Geary,2012 Thirty Years of World Bank Shelter Lending Robert M. Buckley,Jerry Kalarickal,2006-01-01 As England s Industrial Revolution started the process of urbanization that has since characterized development throughout the world a poet worried about the dark satanic mills that were such a fundamental part of this revolution However despite his misgivings he also suggested that it was necessary for societies to arm themselves with chariots of fire and other weapons so that they could master this process In a somewhat more prosaic poetic vein World Bank President Robert McNamara launched the bank s shelter assistance programs saying that If cities do not begin to deal more constructively with poverty poverty may begin to deal more destructively with cities These concerns would appear to have even more resonance today as the population of cities in developing countries increasing by unprecedented levels of more than 1 billion people per year for the next 15 years This magnitude suggests the scale of the increase in the investment in shelter needed to meet the needs of this growing population
