McDougal Littell World History: Patterns of Interaction McDougal Littell, 1998-11      Teaching Global History Alan J. Singer, 2012-04-27 Teaching Global History challenges prospective and beginning social studies teachers to formulate their own views about what is important to know in global history and why It explains how to organize the curriculum around broad social studies concepts and themes and student questions about humanity history and the contemporary world All chapters include lesson ideas a sample lesson plan with activity sheets primary source documents and helpful charts graphs photographs and maps High school students responses are woven in throughout Additional material corresponding to each chapter is posted online at http://people.hofstra.edu/alan\_j\_singer The traditional curriculum tends to highlight the Western heritage and to race through epochs and regions leaving little time for an in depth exploration of concepts and historical themes for the evaluation of primary and secondary sources and for students to draw their own historical conclusions Offering an alternative to such pre packaged textbook outlines and materials this text is a powerful resource for promoting thoughtful reflection and debate about what the global history curriculum should be and how to teach it      Doing History Linda S. Levstik, Keith C. Barton, 2015-01-30 Now in its fifth edition Doing History offers a unique perspective on teaching and learning history in the elementary and middle grades Through case studies of teachers and students in diverse classrooms and from diverse backgrounds it shows children engaging in authentic historical investigations often in the context of an integrated social studies curriculum The premise is that children can engage in valid forms of historical inquiry collecting and analyzing data examining the perspectives of people in the past considering multiple interpretations and creating evidence based historical accounts Grounded in contemporary sociocultural theory and research the text features vignettes in each chapter showing communities of teachers and students doing history in environments rich in literature art writing discussion and debate The authors explain how the teaching demonstrated in the vignettes reflects basic principles of contemporary learning theory Doing History emphasizes diversity of perspectives in two ways readers encounter students from a variety of backgrounds and students themselves look at history from multiple perspectives It provides clear guidance in using multiple forms of assessment to evaluate the specifically historical aspects of children s learning      The New Politics of the Textbook Heather Hickman, Brad J. Porfilio, 2012-10-13 In an age of unprecedented corporate and political control over life inside of educational institutions this book provides a needed intervention to investigate how the economic and political elite use traditional artifacts in K 16 schools to perpetuate their interests at the expense of minoritized social groups The contributors provide a comprehensive examination of how textbooks the most dominant cultural force in which corporations and political leaders impact the schooling curricula shape students thoughts and behavior perpetuate power in dominant groups and trivialize social groups who are oppressed on the structural axes of race class gender sexuality and disability Several contributors also generate critical insight in how power shapes the production of textbooks and evaluate whether textbooks still perpetuate dominant Western narratives that normalize and privilege patriotism militarism consumerism White supremacy heterosexism rugged individualism technology and a positivistic conception of the world Finally the book highlights several textbooks that challenge readers to rethink their stereotypical views of the Other to reflect upon the constitutive forces causing oppression in schools and in the wider society and to reflect upon how to challenge corporate and political dominance over knowledge production

The Transmission of Anglo-Norman Richard P. Ingham, Richard Ingham, 2012 This investigation contributes to issues in the study of second language transmission by considering the well documented historical case of Anglo Norman Within a few generations of the establishment of this variety its phonology diverged sharply from that of continental French yet core syntactic distinctions continued to be reliably transmitted The dissociation of phonology from syntax transmission is related to the age of exposure to the language in the experience of ordinary users of the language The input provided to children acquiring language in a naturalistic communicative setting even though one of a school institution enabled them to acquire target like syntactic properties of the inherited variety In addition it allowed change to take place along the lines of transmission by incrementation A linguistic environment combining the here and now aspects of ordinary first language acquisition with the growing cognitive complexity of an educational meta language appears to have been adequate for this variety to be transmitted as a viable entity that encoded the public life of England for centuries

Interpreting History in Sino-Japanese Relations Caroline Rose, 2005-08-04 The first book length study to examine the re writing of school textbooks by the Japanese Education Ministry in an attempt to play down atrocities in China during World War II The famous textbook crisis in 1982 was at the centre of a diplomatic storm extending through the 1980s as Sino Japanese relations were beset by a series of political controversies This fascinating account of the period reveals that Chinese and Japanese policy makers were more concerned with changes taking place in international and domestic politics than with adopting a correct view of history
