fictional and historical writing the book engages in a transcultural flow of ideas between western and indigenous Chinese feminisms Taking account of the accretions of social cultural geographic literary economic and political movements and trends cultural formations and ways of thinking it asks how the texts and the concepts they negotiate might be understood in the social and cultural spaces within China and how they might be interpreted differently elsewhere in the global locations in which they circulate The book argues that women centred writing in China has a direct bearing on global feminist theory and practice This critical study of selected genres and writers highlights the shifts in feminist perspectives within contemporary local and global cultural landscapes

A Legal History of Adoption in Ontario. 1921-2015 Lori Chambers,2016-01-01 Lori Chambers fascinating study explores the legal history of adoption in Ontario since the passage of the first statute in 1921 This volume explores a wide range of themes and issues in the history of adoption including the reasons for the creation of statutory adoption the increasing voice of unmarried fathers in newborn adoption the reasons for movement away from secrecy in adoption the evolution of step parent adoption the adoption of Indigenous children and the growth of international adoption Unlike other works on adoption Chambers focuses explicitly on statutes statutory debates and the interpretation of statutes in court In doing so she concludes that adoption is an inadequate response to child welfare and on its own cannot solve problems regarding child neglect and abuse Rather Chambers argues that in order to reform the area of adoption we must first acknowledge that it is built upon social inequalities within and between nations

Translating Chinese Fiction Tan Yesheng,2024-06-28

Drawing on the cognitive translational paradigm this book introduces a situation embedded cognitive construction model of translation and explores the thinking portfolios of British and American sinologists cum translators to re-examine their multiple voices and cognition in translating Chinese fiction. By placing sinologists cum translators in the same discourse space, the study transcends the limitations of previous case studies and offers a comprehensive cognitive panorama of how Chinese novels are rendered. The author explores the challenges and difficulties of translating Chinese fiction from the insider perspectives of British and American sinologists and cross-validates their multiple voices by aligning them with cross-cultural communication scenarios. Based on the cognitive construction model of translation, the book provides a systematic review of the translation thoughts and ideas of the community of sinologists in terms of linguistic conventions, narrative styles, contextual and cultural frames, readership categories, and metaphorical models of translation. It envisions a new research path to enhance empirical research on translators' cognition in a dynamic translation ecosystem. The Many Dimensions of Chinese Feminism Y. Chen, 2011-05-23 In the current English language publication market, this book is one of the earliest academic monographs to comparatively investigate different feminist scholars and academic feminism across the Taiwan Strait. It problematizes recent scholarly understanding of feminist complexity in various Chinese-speaking areas. This book addresses sociocultural backgrounds of how Mainland Chinese, Taiwanese, and Hong Kong feminist scholars strategize their transfers, localization, and acculturation of Western feminist literary theories. It emphasizes how Chinese literary theorists filter, gate-keep, select, import, and adapt latest Western feminist theories and then match them with local socio-cultural trends by exerting comparative research, cross-cultural, and cross-lingual academic power in order to tackle Mainland China's, Taiwan's, and Hong Kong's own gender problems.

Social Media in Industrial China Xinyuan Wang, 2016-09-13 Life outside the mobile phone is unbearable. Lily, 19 factory worker, described as the biggest migration in human history: an estimated 250 million Chinese people have left their villages in recent decades to live and work in urban areas. Xinyuan Wang spent 15 months living among a community of these migrants in a small factory town in southeast China to track their use of social media. It was here she witnessed a second migration taking place: a movement from offline to online. As Wang argues, this is not simply a convenient analogy but represents the convergence of two phenomena as profound and consequential as each other, where the online world now provides a home for the migrant workers who feel otherwise homeless. Wang's fascinating study explores the full range of preconceptions commonly held about Chinese people, their relationship with education, with family, with politics, with home, and argues why, for this vast population, it is time to reassess what we think we know about contemporary China and the evolving role of social media.
