English as a Foreign Language for Deaf and Hard-of-Hearing Persons Ewa Domagała-Zyśk,Edit H. Kontra,2016-09-23 Deaf and hard of hearing students form a specific group of foreign language learners. They need to use foreign languages just like their hearing peers if they want to enjoy the same benefits of globalization and technical advancements of today yet they cannot take part in the same foreign language education. As sign language users, lip readers or persons relying on hearing aids or cochlear implants in their everyday communication, they need special support in learning a foreign language. This book has been written by teachers and researchers involved in teaching English as a foreign language (EFL) to deaf and hard of hearing students in various different European countries including the Czech Republic, France, Hungary, Norway, Poland, and Serbia. The chapters mirror both the authors' personal journeys through this field and give insight into various aspects of empirical research into the foreign language acquisition of hearing impaired learners. They discuss mainly the issue of specific methodology for teaching EFL vocabulary, grammar, reading, writing, and speaking to deaf and hard of hearing persons and the challenge of effective communication during the classes via sign language, cued speech, or the oral approach. Special chapters are also devoted to EFL teachers' experience in special schools for the deaf. Educators interested in practical advice, responses to challenges, and worked-out solutions to problems will particularly welcome this book as a useful source of ideas. It will also help novice teachers embarking on their careers in English language education for deaf and hard of hearing children and adults.

Materials development for TESOL Freda Mishan, 2015-06-03

Materials development has become much more important in the field of TESOL in the last twenty years. Modules on materials development are now commonplace on MA TESOL courses around the world. The overall aim of the book is to introduce readers to a wide range of theoretical and practical issues in materials development to enable them to make informed and principled choices in the selection, evaluation, adaptation, and production of materials. The book aims to show how these choices need to be informed by an awareness of culture, context, and purpose.

The Plurilingual TESOL Teacher Elizabeth Ellis, 2016-10-24

This book introduces a new topic to applied linguistics: the significance of the TESOL teacher's background as a learner and user of additional languages. The development of the global TESOL profession as a largely English-only enterprise has led to the accepted view that as long as the teacher has English proficiency, then her or his other languages are irrelevant. The book questions this view. Learners are in the process of becoming plurilingual, and this book argues that they are best served by a teacher who has experience of plurilingualism. The book proposes a new way of looking at teacher linguistic identity by examining in detail the rich language biographies of teachers of growing up with two or more languages, of learning languages through schooling, or as an adult migrating to another linguaculture, of living in a plurilingual family, and many more. The book examines the history of language in education policy which has led to the development of the TESOL profession in Australia and elsewhere as a monolingual enterprise. It shows that teachers' language backgrounds have been ignored in teacher selection, teacher training, and ongoing professional development. The author draws on literature in teacher cognition bilingualism studies intercultural competence bilingual lifewriting and linguistic identity to argue that languages play a key part in the development of teachers professional beliefs identity language awareness and language learning awareness Drawing on three studies involving 115 teachers from Australia and seven other countries the author demonstrates conclusively that large numbers of teachers do have plurilingual experiences that these experiences are ignored in the profession but that they have powerful effects on the formation of beliefs about language learning and teaching which underpin good practice Those teachers who identify as monolingual almost invariably have some language learning experience but it was low level short lived and unsuccessful How does the experience of successful or unsuccessful language learning and language use affect one s identity beliefs and practice as an English language teacher What kinds of experience are most beneficial These concepts and findings have implications for teacher language education teacher professional development and the current calls for increased plurilingual practices in the TESOL classroom
