

A2 Biology Syllabus 9700

Unit 4: Applications of Biology

Recommended Prior Knowledge

Students should have a good understanding of the A5 content and Units 1, 2 and 3 of the A2 content. As will be seen from the following suggested ideas for a scheme of work, there are many areas where students should review their learning and make links to the applications sections.

Context

This Unit provides students with the opportunity to consider developments in biology and to gain an insight into how knowledge and understanding of biological facts, principles and concepts can be applied to develop new techniques that are beneficial in the everyday world. A good proportion of Unit 4 includes topics that are very much considered to be 'mainstream' biology. Also it has been a number of years since many of the techniques described in the Unit were considered to be 'cutting edge'. The terms 'core' and 'applications' could probably now be described to students as 'a good foundation' for appreciating 'how biology is used to benefit the world'.

Outline

There are five main topics in this unit, but these should not be taught in isolation as there are many cross references to the rest of the A5 and A2 syllabus as well as many links between the five topics e.g. gene technology and biotechnology, gene technology and crop plants.

Q Biodiversity and conservation

- Classification
- Conservation issues

R Gene technology

- Gene technology for insulin production
- Markers for genetic engineering
- Benefits and hazards of gene technology
- DNA sequencing and genetic fingerprinting
- Cystic fibrosis
- Genetic screening and genetic counselling

B Biotechnology

- Industrial applications of microorganisms
- Batch and continuous culture
- Penicillin as an antibiotic
- Immobilisation of enzymes
- Monoclonal antibodies
