Content-Addressable Memories Teuvo Kohonen,2012-12-06 Due to continual progress in the large scale integration of semiconductor circuits parallel computing principles can already be met in low cost sys tems numerous examples exist in image processing for which special hard ware is implementable with quite modest resources even by nonprofessional designers Principles of content addressing if thoroughly understood can thereby be applied effectively using standard components On the other hand mass storage based on associative principles still exists only in the long term plans of computer technologists This situation is somewhat confused by the fact that certain expectations are held for the development of new storage media such as optical memories and spin glasses metal alloys with low density magnetic impurities Their technologies however may not ripen until after fifth generation computers have been built It seems that software methods for content addressing especially those based on hash coding principles are still holding their position firmly and a few innovations have been developed recently As they need no special hardware one might expect that they will spread to a wide circle of users This monograph is based on an extensive literature survey most of which was published in the First Edition I have added Chap which contains a review of more recent work This updated book now has references to
