Architecture-Based Design of Multi-Agent Systems Danny Weyns, 2010-06-01 Multi agent systems are claimed to be especially suited to the development of software systems that are decentralized can deal flexibly with dynamic conditions and are open to system components that come and go This is why they are used in domains such as manufacturing control automated vehicles and e commerce markets Danny Weyns book is organized according to the postulate that developing multi agent systems is 95% software engineering and 5% multi agent systems theory He presents a software engineering approach for multi agent systems that is heavily based on software architecture with for example tailored patterns such as situated agent virtual environment and selective perception and on middleware for distributed coordination with programming abstractions such as views and roles Next he shows the feasibility and applicability of this approach with the development of an automated transportation system consisting of a number of automatic guided vehicles transporting loads in an industrial setting Weyns puts the development of multi agent systems into a larger perspective with traditional software engineering approaches With this he opens up opportunities to exploit the body of knowledge developed in the multi agent systems community to tackle some of the difficult challenges of modern day software systems such as decentralized control location awareness self adaption and large scale Thus his book is of interest for both researchers and industrial software engineers who develop applications in areas such as distributed control systems and mobile applications where such requirements are of crucial importance
