the great treatise on the Love of God were already taking shape in the Saint's mind and how in the midst of many labours demanding the full exercise of that practical sense which was so distinctive a quality of his character he was living habitually in a higher region of very close union with God. The insight which a perusal of the Mystical Explanation gives us into the history of his spiritual development is at the same time an incentive to all those who have to pass a life of activity in God's service to devote themselves without ceasing to loving thought of Divine things to maintain themselves in the midst of their labour closely united to God and to cultivate the interior spirit no less but far more than the manifestations of external zeal. It is a lesson that we all need at the present day in the hurry and pressure of so many urgent duties. The second part of the volume before us gives us the detailed and finished portrait of the Saint's life told in her own simple and transparently truthful words by her whom God had chosen to be the principal instrument in that which was probably the most enduring work entrusted to St Francis de Sales namely the foundation of the Religious Institute of the Visitation. Almost day by day we are carried in the footsteps of the Saint through every period of his life. We see him as he appeared to the eyes of St Jane Frances not in any fancy portraiture such as distance conveys to later biographers but as he was in the sight of those who lived in close intimacy with him. It is a picture full of consolation and encouragement destined by Divine Providence to make us understand and love the Saint more than any other account of his life could do and thereby to draw us to greater thankfulness to God for having given us an example so sweet to contemplate and so deserving of our imitation.

The Mystical Explanation of the Canticle of Canticles Saint Francis de Sales, Aeterna Press, 2015-09-01

THERE ARE TWO sorts of unions of the soul with God in this world the first by grace which is made in Baptism or by means of Penance the second by devotion and this is made by means of spiritual exercises. The one makes us innocent and the other spiritual. Solomon considering himself to have given sufficient instruction on the first sort of union in his other books only teaches the second in the Canticles in which he supposes the spouse that is the devout soul to be already married to her Divine Beloved and represents their holy and chaste married loves practiced by mental prayer which is simply the consideration of God and Divine things. Introduction to the Medieval Mystics of Europe Paul E.

Szarmach, 1985-06-30 The European Middle Ages bequeathed to the world a legacy of spiritual and intellectual brilliance that has shaped many of the ideals preconceptions and institutions we now take for granted An Introduction to the Medieval Mystics of Europe examines this phenomenon in vivid and scholarly accounts of the lives and achievements of those men and women whose genius most inspired their own and subsequent ages These great mystics explored and consciously realized the relationship between human life and unconditioned transcendence Representing both the contemplative and scholastic traditions the mystics in these studies often found their solutions to ultimate questions in radically different ways Some of them such as Eckhart Aquinas and Cusa may already be familiar and here the reader will benefit from a new approach and summary of extensive research Others such as Smaragdus and several of the women mystics are little known even to specialists Finally and unusually for a study of European mysticism the influence of Spanish Kabbalists is discussed in relation to the Zohar and two figures from the mystical school of Safed Cordovero and Luria Though the essays focus on individuals the cultural and social implications of their lives and work are never ignored for the mystic way did not exist separately from the rest of medieval life it functioned as an integral part of the whole influencing the development of Christian and Jewish religions in both their internal and external forms
