

Religion in the Therapy Room: Reflections on the Beloved by a Child of the Indian Diaspora

Mamta Banu Dadlani

Berkeley, California, United States

The author invites the reader—through the use of personal narrative, clinical technique, reverie, and case example—to embody the voice of their Beloved in the therapy room. She begins with a reflection on her relationship as a Sindhi Hindu woman born in the United States to religion and spirituality (the Beloved) as a means of centering self-awareness and personal history in clinical theory. She then shares strategies that encourage clients to discuss their religious and spiritual beliefs (or lack thereof) in psychotherapy. Case examples follow, focusing on three scenarios: when the patient is not a person of faith, when the therapist and patient share a faith practice, and when the therapist and patient observe different faith practices. These examples illustrate how personal explorations enable clinicians to attune to and speak into patients' own relationships to faith and underscore the importance of being open to moments of reverie about religion, even when religion is not explicitly discussed. The article closes with a reflection on the necessity of embodying the principles of the Beloved, including community and liberation throughout our professional endeavors.

Keywords: religion, Hinduism, Buddhism, psychotherapy, use of self

Every morning, I walk up to my dresser covered with rocks and shells and tokens of people and places alongside my statues of Ganesha, Sarasvati, Lakshmi, and the rest of the crew. This is a temple most Hindus would not call a temple, my form of prayer a loose interpretation, but I take a seat to hear what the Beloved has to say. I listen for the Beloved's breath and song—and I find it—in what some may consider unlikely places.

In the pages that follow, I hope to offer a roadmap to how we can listen to the Beloved in the therapy room. I begin with a story of my relationship to religion in an effort to center what clinical theory subtly communicates is peripheral—in this case, religion and the person of the therapist. By doing so, I aim to underscore the possibilities that emerge when we understand personal narrative and self-reflection as essential to nuanced and rigorous clinical intervention. Next, I offer strategies to invite discussions about religion and spirituality at multiple points in treatment. Finally, I offer three case examples. I share associations, formulations, and interventions when the patient is not a person of faith, when the therapist and patient share a faith practice, and when the therapist and patient observe different faith practices.

My Relationship to the Beloved

I have a sensory imprint from my early years when engaged in the gatherings and rituals of a Sindhi Hindu in the United States—the smells and sounds and the sense of postpartition, diasporic community. But the first time I feel the Beloved, I am in the middle of the Arizona desert under a new moon. I am working on an astrophotography project, trying to capture long exposures of nebulae through a telescope lens. As the hours pass, my gaze is focused upward. I imagine the depth and curve of space about which I am learning. I think about how energy changes form, from potential to kinetic and back, from the center of an exploding star to the molecules of

Reflections On Science And Religion:

Reflections on Science and Religion Sam Tarzi, 2014-12-02 Reflecting on the possible connections between science and religion and not finding convincing answers in the texts that I was reading I decided to refine and record my thoughts As there are significant differences in emphasis and content to anything I have read I felt it worth disseminating what I have written to a general audience Some authors come to the subject from the viewpoint of having been versed in religion rather than science and I come from the opposite direction Within science my background is in the physical sciences and within religion my passing acquaintance has been with Judaism The religions originating in the Middle East take a different form to those originating further east but there is sufficient overlap that the arguments presented have a general significance Amongst the usual categories of this subject are religious scripture and interpretation religious language religious experience religious education God philosophy psychology and sociology of religion the self and free will morality and suffering various scientific themes and others In terms of structure of presentation within such a brief account I felt it unnecessary to compartmentalize the various tracts of the essay precisely according to these guidelines but I have still managed to broadly adopt them exploring parallel themes I attempt to cover both the common and some less well known issues that arise in the debate introducing opinions from different viewpoints and acknowledging the various approaches to problems The general arguments proposed will apply equally to all major religions which do all appear to have the three components beliefs ethics and ritual practices but with a different emphasis on each So whilst Christianity has fewer strict rules in comparison to Orthodox Judaism the latter puts more stress on observance of law as interpreted by generations of scholars In Hinduism there are many Gods and in Buddhism there is no supreme creator It is not possible to distill every possible viewpoint on a topic in this short book but we do survey many

Reflections on Science, Religion and Society:

A Medical Perspective Joseph B Martin, 2017-06-28 Throughout his long and distinguished career in medicine and neuroscience Dr Joseph B Martin has had the honor of delivering speeches to graduating students professional societies and academic conferences As both a lifelong Anabaptist and prominent member of the scientific community his talks often focus on how to balance the spiritual and logical sides of our being to become healthier and more productive members of society Collected here are several of Dr Martin's speeches from over more than fifty years as an academic and doctor They reflect his evolving views on science and spirituality and explore how that confluence is at the center of some of today's most important and controversial issues Interspersed with commentary to provide further context and reflection the talks reflect the changes we have seen as a society deeply entrenched in technological advances and religious tensions Through them Dr Martin helps us to understand both the world around us and the world within The Lab, the Temple, and the Market Sharon Harper, 2000 This book meshes a discussion of development issues and processes with four different systems of religious beliefs Hinduism Christianity Islam and the Baha'i Faith The authors each a scientist as well as a person of faith show how religious belief and personal faith can be deeply motivational and strikingly fruitful in scientific pursuits Further they emphasize how their faith has brought them a profound understanding of interconnectedness and compassion and thus a wider perspective and greater sense of personal meaning to their research Book jacket The Evidence of Things Not Seen VERNON L. SMITH, 2017-11-20 Religious and non religious people alike commonly assert that religion and science occupy two entirely separate and distinct realms There can be it is said neither conflict nor concourse between them But what if science and religion share something deeply mysterious in common What if that mysterious commonality is faith In this short but provocative collection the eminent economist Vernon L Smith explores the spooky aspects of contemporary science and uncovers the faith and mystery at the root of scientific inquiry Through his lecture delivered at the Acton Institute s annual conference in 2016 and in conversations with other scholars on the lecture s themes Smith reflects on the history of physics and economics and the discoveries of quantum theory and experimental economics all with a view toward the convergence of religion and science in their dependence on the evidence of things not seen John Paul II on Science and Religion Robert J. Russell, William R. Stoeger, George V. Coyne, 1990 God's Existence: Religious and Scientific Reflection Ravi K. Puri Ph.D., 2022-12-06 When war crimes and calamities occur the belief in God is shaken The idea comes to mind Does God Exist If there is a God then why is he not preventing deadly events comprising genocides assassinations crimes and atrocities On the contrary He does not interfere That means there is no God Are people worshiping at various religious places Churches Mosques and Temples for various reasons wasting their time If God does not exist all these religious places should be closed and turned into cinemas entertainment clubs and sports stadiums God is not any object that His existence can be proved It can be felt by seeing His splendid creation The act of creation reveals the creator To know His existence is to know his magnificent creation and redemption He is the transcendent designer and has not revealed Himself so far to anyone No God His prophet deputy or beloved can interfere with any life on any planet Each soul has its journey and is responsible for its actions God is apathetic to the creation of the universe or any happening in the universe The universe goes on as per its natural laws So let us not blame God for any catastrophe occurring in the world Reflections on Reason, Religion, and Tolerance Klass Grinell, 2015-06-07 This is an attempt to reflect on Islam as it appears in the context of Fethullah Gulen s teachings an influential Turkish Muslim scholar who inspired a movement of education and interfaith dialogue Grinell s extensive study of Islam and of Gulen allows him to pinpoint a unique expression of values and beliefs that could alter the typical understanding of Islam and Muslims in the West He draws upon his previous studies of the Gulen Movement and comparatively places Gulen in a wider context of faith and society What is the concept of knowledge in Islam as understood by Gulen How is faith and service to people connected Is Gulen after building a sultanate Does the Gulen movement have a hidden political agenda How traditional or modern is Gulen These are some of the questions Grinell attempts to answer from his perspective As a humanistic researcher on Islam Grinell believes we definitely have something to

Reflections on Politics, Sociology & Religion. Collected and Redacted from Various Sources ... James Hibbert,1886

Reflections on Life Walter Kistler, Frank Miele,2003 This book distills six decades of diary entries on science religion truth ethics success and society by Walter Kistler scientist industrialist and philanthropist The book explores these subjects through the lenses of analysis and implication and presents the compelling findings of an extraordinary lifelong intellectual odyssey Why Beliefs Matter E. Brian Davies,2010-07-09 In the follow up to his acclaimed Science in the Looking Glass Brian Davies discusses deep problems about our place in the world using a minimum of technical jargon The book argues that absolutist ideas of the objectivity of science dating back to Plato continue to mislead generations of both theoretical physicists and theologians It explains that the multi layered nature of our present descriptions of the world is unavoidable not because of anything about the world but because of our own human natures It tries to rescue mathematics from the singular and exceptional status that it has been assigned as much by those who understand it as by those who do not Working throughout from direct quotations from many of the important contributors to its subject it concludes with a penetrating criticism of many of the recent contributions to the often acrimonious debates about science and religions Vision, Tradition, Interpretation Eric J. Lott, 1988 Since its founding by Jacques Waardenburg in 1971 Religion and Reason has been a leading forum for contributions on theories, theoretical issues and agendas related to the phenomenon and the study of religion. Topics include among others category formation, comparison, ethnophilosophy, hermeneutics, methodology, myth, phenomenology, philosophy of science, scientific atheism, structuralism and theories of religion. From time to time the series publishes volumes that map the state of the art and the history of the discipline Aphorisms and Reflections from the Works of T. H. Huxley Thomas Henry Huxley, 2022-08-10 In Aphorisms and Reflections from the Works of T. H. Huxley the reader is invited to explore the profound insights and observations of one of the 19th century's most influential scientists and philosophers. Huxley's literary style is characterized by clarity and precision, often interlaced with wit, which makes complex scientific and philosophical ideas accessible to a broader audience. This collection encapsulates Huxley's reflections on the convergence of science and ethics, knowledge and ignorance, all within the context of the burgeoning debates surrounding Darwinism, evolution and modernity. The aphorisms serve not only as contemplative musings but also as a critique of the societal and intellectual landscapes of his time, highlighting Huxley's role as a key figure in the promotion of scientific thought against a backdrop of traditional beliefs. Thomas Henry Huxley, often referred to as Darwin's Bulldog for his defense of evolutionary theory, was a man of fierce intellect and commitment to education. His background in medicine and natural history equipped him with a unique perspective on the implications of scientific inquiry. Huxley was deeply engaged with the societal implications of science, often challenging the status quo and pushing for a more rational understanding of human existence. His writings reflect a desire to reconcile rational thought with ethical living, a theme that is richly explored in this collection. This book is an essential read for anyone interested in the intersection of science, philosophy and ethics. Huxley's aphorisms provoke thought and inspire critical reflection, encouraging readers to question preconceived notions and embrace a more enlightened understanding of the world around them. For scholars, students and anyone intrigued by the evolution of modern thought, Huxley's reflections offer timeless wisdom and guidance Faithful Science Alistair J. McKittrick, 2022-03-17 This thesis studies the impact of teaching intelligent design to evangelical students. Science is often presented as a reason why some find sharing their faith difficult in a secular culture; teaching the science of intelligent design enables Christians to initiate conversations and overcome obstacles with those whose worldview is more Darwinian and materialist. The professional doctoral research employs both action research and practical theology. Lin Norton's pedagogical action research provides the structure for the qualitative research and thematic analysis, showing that students find learning about intelligent design empowering for evangelism. Richard Osmer's model of practical theology enables an interdisciplinary reflection on how intelligent design challenges Western secular culture. Intelligent design is seen as the most integrative of all the different ways of relating science and theology. Theologically teaching intelligent design is like teaching a modern parable to contemporary society and just like the Gospel parables some respond with faith and some reject it Evangelical students find learning about it both liberating and empowering in their ability to share their faith more confidently with others especially in schools and youth groups

Thoughts on Religion George John Romanes, 1896 The Routledge Companion to Religion and Science James W. Haag, Gregory R. Peterson, Michael L. Spezio, 2012-03-12

The field of religion and science is one of the most exciting and dynamic areas of research today This Companion brings together an outstanding team of scholars to explore the ways in which science intersects with the major religions of the world and religious naturalism The collection provides an overview of the field and also indicates ways in which it is developing Its multicultural breadth and scientific rigor on topics that are and will be compelling issues in the first part of the twenty first century and beyond will be welcomed by students and scholars alike
