Redeeming the Enlightenment Bruce Ward, 2010-02-15 As we move further away from the historical period known as the Enlightenment it seems the debate about its impact becomes increasingly polarized Arguments focus on either rejecting or claiming its legacy In this book Bruce Ward contends that the concern should be neither to reject or claim but to see how it can be redeemed Ward sets up a three sided dialogic encounter among primary thinkers and critics of modernity philosophical theological and literary using Rousseau Nietzsche and Dostoevsky to focus the discussion Ward does not neglect other significant thinkers notably Kant Heidegger Tolstoy Charles Taylor Locke Kafka Ren Girard and Martha Nussbaum but uses them to illumine the questions at issue among the primary three Though each chapter of this book can be treated as a relatively independent reflection the book as a whole offers innovative redemption of the Enlightenment values of equality authenticity tolerance and compassion

Hastening Redemption Arie Morgenstern, 2006-06-22 Accounts of the history of Zionism usually trace its origins to the late nineteenth century In this groundbreaking book Arie Morgenstern argues that its roots go back even further Morgenstern argues compellingly that the Jewish community in Israel may be traced back to a large scale wave of immigration during the first half of the nineteenth century Inspired by an expectation for the coming of the Messiah in the year 1840 thousands of Jews from throughout the Ottoman Empire North Africa and Eastern Europe relocated to Jerusalem Morgenstern describes the messianic awakening in all these lands but focuses primarily on the concept of redemption through messianic activism that prevailed among the disciples of Rabbi Elijah the Gaon of Vilna These immigrants believed that the Messiah's arrival would bring about the redemption of the Jews but also that in order for this redemption to come about they needed to prepare the way for the Messiah by fulfilling the commandment to dwell in the land of Israel Morgenstern offers a dramatic account of their relocation their efforts to renew rabbinic ordination their reestablishment of the Ashkenazi community and the building of Jerusalem He also explores the crisis of faith that followed the Messiah's failure to appear as expected and its effects on the community Drawing on a wealth of previously untapped sources Morgenstern sheds important new light on the history of messianic Judaism and on the ideological trends that preceded and eventually gave birth to modern political Zionism

Islam and the English Enlightenment, 1670-1840 Humberto

Garcia, 2012-01-30 A corrective addendum to Edward Said's Orientalism this book examines how sympathetic representations of Islam contributed significantly to Protestant Britain's national and imperial identity in the eighteenth century Taking a historical view Humberto Garcia combines a rereading of eighteenth century and Romantic era British literature with original research on Anglo Islamic relations He finds that far from being considered foreign by the era's thinkers Islamic republicanism played a defining role in Radical Enlightenment debates most significantly during the Glorious Revolution French Revolution and other moments of acute constitutional crisis as well as in national and political debates about England and its overseas empire Garcia shows that writers such as Edmund Burke Lady Mary Wortley Montagu Samuel Taylor Coleridge Robert Southey and Percy and Mary Shelley not only were influenced by international events in the Muslim world but also saw in that world and its history a viable path to interrogate contest and redefine British concepts of liberty This deft exploration of the forgotten moment in early modern history when intercultural exchange between the Muslim world and Christian West was common resituates English literary and intellectual history in the wider context of the global eighteenth century The direct challenge it poses to the idea of an exclusionary Judeo Christian Enlightenment serves as an important revision to post 9/11 narratives about a historical clash between Western democratic values and Islam
