Writing Academic Essays

Originally, the word essay (from an attempt or practice) did not imply the need to write a piece of writing, but simply the subject. It is a word representing the need to think on, learn from, the process and performance of an activity. These words should be "trying out" ideas and arguments to see if they fit the required situation (your course work).

In practice, writing an essay usually involves responding to a question or topic. The writer looks for ideas from the topic through his or her own experience. This can be done through reading or through your personal knowledge. There are a number of approaches that can be taken. One approach is to write a paper based on your own work. It is important that you develop the required skills.

The purpose of writing an academic essay is to provide a written record of your learning.
