

Introduction - Life Science

The following released test questions are taken from the Life Science Standards Test. This test is one of the California Standards Tests administered as part of the Standardized Testing and Reporting (STAR) Program under policies set by the State Board of Education.

All questions on the California Standards Tests are evaluated by committees of content experts, including teachers and administrators, to ensure their appropriateness for measuring the California academic content standards in Life Science. In addition to content, all items are reviewed and approved to ensure their adherence to the principles of fairness and to ensure no bias exists with respect to characteristics such as gender, ethnicity, and language.

This document contains released test questions from the California Standards Test form in 2006, 2007, and 2008. First on the pages that follow are lists of the Grades 6 through 12 standards assessed on the Life Science Test. Next are released test questions. Following the questions is a table that gives the correct answer for each question, the content standard that each question is measuring, and the year each question appeared on the test.

The following table lists each reporting cluster, the number of items that appear on the exam, and the number of released test questions that appear in this document.

Gilbert Ling,2012-12-06 It is highly probable that the ability to distinguish between living and nonliving objects was already well developed in early prehuman animals Cognizance of the difference between these two classes of objects long a part of human knowledge led naturally to the division of science into two categories physics and chemistry on the one hand and biology on the other So deep was this belief in the separateness of physics and biology that as late as the early nineteenth century many biologists still believed in vitalism according to which living phenomena fall outside the confines of the laws of physics It was not until the middle of the nineteenth century that Carl Ludwig Hermann von Helmholtz Emil DuBois Reymond and Ernst von Bricke inaugurated a physicochemical approach to physiology in which it was recognized clearly that one set of laws must govern the properties and behavior of all matter living and nonliving The task of a biologist is like trying to solve a gigantic multidimensional crossword fill in the right physical concepts at the right places The biologist depends on puzzle to the maturation of the science of physics much as the crossword solver depends on a large and correct vocabulary The solver of crossword puzzles needs not just a good vocabulary but a special vocabulary Words like inee and oke are vitally useful to him but are not part of the vocabulary of an English professor The Texas Outlook ,1971
