Scenario 1: Ill health

Nigel is 45 years old. A brain injury has left him partially paralysed down his right-hand side, after a year in hospital, initially on a medical ward and then in a rehabilitation centre. He will be on medication for his brain injury for the rest of his life.

He now walks with the aid of a stick, swinging his right leg to walk and cannot move his right arm at all. He lives on his own in a new home and has been allocated a support worker, Tama, to help him adjust to his condition. He has family and friends living close by.

Nigel is depressed. He suffers from mood swings and is often angry with his situation, although he pretends to be cheerful and makes fun of himself and his condition when he is with family and friends.

(a) Identify two ways in which a support worker might help Nigel adapt to his changed circumstances.

- 1 They might help him by therapy to control his mood swings & depression
- 2 Supporting him & reminding him to take medications

Hint

For this Identify question, you simply need to provide the facts asked for, with no added details.

Hint

Imagine what you would need help with if you were partially paralysed down one side and lived on your own.

Hint

Remember that not only will Nigel need help doing day-to-day tasks, but he will also need help to come to terms with his changed life. His family and friends will need support with this too.
