Life Beside Itself Lisa Stevenson, 2014-08-22 This ethnographic study examines two historical moments in the Canadian Arctic the Inuit tuberculosis epidemic 1940s to the early 1960s and the subsequent suicide epidemic 1980s to the present The colonial Canadian North was imagined as a laboratory for a social experiment to transform Inuit into bona fide Canadian citizens by among other things reducing their death rate This experiment demanded Inuit cooperation with the forms of anonymous care the state provided including the evacuation of tubercular Inuit Southern Sanatoria which left many Inuit families without the story or image of their loved one's death A similar indifference to who lives or dies is manifest in the adoption of the suicide hotline an explicitly anonymous form of care where caregivers exhort unidentified Inuit to live while simultaneously expecting them to die Through attention to the images through which people think and dream Stevenson describes a world in which life is beside itself the name soul of a teenager who dies in a crash lives again in his friend's newborn baby a young girl shares a last smoke with a dead friend in a dream the possessed hands of a clock spin uncontrollably over its face For the Inuit life is somewhere else and Stevenson attempts to articulate forms of care adequate to that truth

Genocide Perspectives VI Nikki Marczak, Kirril Shields
,2020-12-21 Genocide Perspectives VI grapples with two core themes the personal toll of genocide and processes that facilitate the crime From political choices governments and leaders make through to denialism and impunity the crime of genocide recurs again and again across the globe At what cost to individuals and communities What might the legacy of this criminality be This collection of essays examines the personal sacrifice genocide takes from those who live through the trauma and the generations that follow Contributors speak to the way visual art and literature attempt to represent genocide hoping to make sense of problematic histories while also offering a means of reflection after years of slow violence or silenced memories Some authors generously allow us into their own histories or contemplate how they may have experienced genocide had they been born in another time or place What facets contribute to the processes that lead to or enable the crime of genocide This collection explores those processes through a variety of case studies and lenses How do nurses whose role is inherently linked to care and compassion become mass killers How do restrictions on religious freedom play a role in advancing genocidal policies and why do perpetrators of genocide often target religious leaders Why is it so important for Australia and other nations with histories of colonial genocide to acknowledge their past Among the essays published in this volume we have the privilege and the sorrow of publishing the very last essay Professor Colin Tatz wrote before his passing in 2019 His contribution reveals yet again the enormous influence of both his research and his original ideas on genocide He reflects on continuing legacies for Indigenous Australian communities with whom he worked for many decades and adds nuance to contemporary understanding of the Armenian Genocide and the Holocaust two other cases to which he was deeply committed

Contemporary Sephardic and Mizrahi Literature Dario Miccoli, 2017-04-21 This book argues that the literary texts produced by Sephardic and Mizrahi Jews who migrated from the Middle East and North Africa in the 1950s onwards should be considered as part of a transnational arena in which forms of Jewish diasporism and postcolonial displacement interweave Through an original perspective that focuses on novelists poets professional and amateur writers the book explains that these Sephardic and Mizrahi authors are part of a global literary diaspora at the crossroads of past Arab legacies new national identities and persistent feelings of Jewishness

Cross-Lingual Word Embeddings Anders Søgaard, Ivan Vulić, Sebastian Ruder, Manaal Faruqi, 2022-05-31 The majority of natural language processing NLP is English language processing and while there is good language technology support for standard varieties of English support for Albanian Burmese or Cebuano and most other languages remains limited Being able to bridge this digital divide is important for scientific and democratic reasons but also represents an enormous growth potential A key challenge for this to happen is learning to align basic meaning bearing units of different languages In this book the authors survey and discuss recent and historical work on supervised and unsupervised learning of such alignments Specifically the book focuses on so called cross lingual word embeddings The survey is intended to be systematic using consistent notation and putting the available methods on comparable form making it easy to compare wildly different approaches In so doing the authors establish previously unreported relations between these methods and are able to present a fast growing literature in a very compact way

Furthermore the authors discuss how best to evaluate cross lingual word embedding methods and survey the resources available for students and researchers interested in this topic

New to the LSP classroom? A selection of monographs on successful practices Martina Vránová, 2023-05-23 As Languages for Specific Purposes have always been defined as student oriented the rationale behind this volume is to use the rather neglected niche of the other necessary agent of language instruction and thus focus on the LSP practitioner This turn towards the instructor has been motivated by the fact that a great number of LSP practitioners enter their jobs without previous expertise They lack LSP education or they may not even have a background in applied linguistics This motivation has proven valid as many of the volume s contributors have faced this particular situation in their professional lives For insights into the LSP field and guidelines on the best practices they must rely on their colleagues who offer to share their experience through workshops conferences or papers which is what this volume provides The primary goal of this volume is to present considerations of what challenges LSP practitioners face and should be prepared for in their jobs and to provide practice tested methodological guidelines on such demanding teaching techniques as blended and flipped learning or tandem learning All papers have been written by LSP practitioners and researchers in higher education Thus this volume provides both guidance and self reflection In other words it is written by experienced LSP practitioners for aspiring LSP practitioners about how they see themselves and what effort they make to meet the challenges of their jobs As proof that LSP practice is a global challenge papers have been collected from many European countries the USA Uruguay Even though most papers are naturally concerned with English being the lingua franca of today the collection also features guidelines for teaching Spanish French and Dutch for specific purposes Moreover the target disciplines these languages are taught for encompass business engineering sociology or medicine thus supporting the assumption of the universal character of problems LSP practitioners deal with
