Dan Edelstein,2010-12-15 In this concise bold and innovative book Dan Edelstein offers us an original account of the Enlightenment It convincingly argues that the Enlightenment is above all a narrative about social and cultural changes and that its origins can be found in the Quarrel of the Ancients and the Moderns Therefore by reconsidering the importance of the French esprit philosophique in the Euroean Enlightenment this book will be of considerable importance for every scholar and student interested in this period

Rethinking the Work Ethic in Premodern Europe Gábor Almási,Giorgio Lizzul,2023-11-14 This book investigates how work ethics in Europe were conceptualised from the Middle Ages to the nineteenth century Through analysis of a range of discourses it focuses on the roles played by intellectuals in formulating communicating and contesting ideas about work and its ethical value The book moves away from the idea of a singular Weberian work ethic as fundamental to modern notions of work and instead emphasises how different languages of work were harnessed for a variety of social intellectual religious economic political and ideological objectives Rather than a singular work ethic that left a decisive mark on the development of Western culture and economy the volume stresses plurality The essays draw on approaches from intellectual social and cultural history They explore how why and in what contexts labour became an important and openly promoted value who promoted or opposed hard work and for what reasons and whether there was an early modern break with ancient and medieval discourses on work These historicized visions of work ethics help enrich our understanding of present day changing attitudes to work Critique philosophique ,1877

Making Space Public in Early Modern Europe Angela Vanhaelen,Joseph P. Ward,2013-04-26 Broadening the conversation begun in Making Publics in Early Modern Europe 2009 this book examines how the spatial dynamics of public making changed the shape of early modern society The publics visited in this volume are voluntary groupings of diverse individuals that could coalesce through the performative uptake of shared cultural forms and practices The contributors argue that such forms of association were social productions of space as well as collective identities Chapters explore a range of cultural activities such as theatre performances travel and migration practices of persuasion the embodied experiences of lived space and the central importance of media and material things in the creation of publics and the production of spaces They assess a multiplicity of publics that produced and occupied a multiplicity of social spaces where collective identity and voice could be created discovered asserted and exercised Cultural producers and consumers thus challenged dominant ideas about just who could enter the public arena greatly expanding both the real and imaginary spaces of public life to include hitherto excluded groups of private people The consequences of this historical reconfiguration of public space remain relevant especially for contemporary efforts to meaningfully include the views of ordinary people in public life

Creolised Science Dorit Brixius,2024-04-04 This rich deeply researched study offers the first comprehensive exploration of cross cultural plant knowledge in eighteenth century Mauritius Using the concept of creolisation the process by which elements of different cultures are brought together to create entangled and evolving new entities Brixius examines the production of knowledge on an island without long established traditions of botany as understood by Europeans Once foreign plants and knowledge arrived in Mauritius they were adapted to new environmental circumstances and a new socio cultural space Brixius explores how French colonists settlers mediators labourers and enslaved people experienced and shaped the island s botanical past centring the contributions of subaltern actors By foregrounding neglected non European actors from both Africa and Asia within a melting pot of cultivation traditions from around the world she presents a truly global history of botanical knowledge

A Not-So-New World Christopher M. Parsons,2018-09-21 When Samuel de Champlain founded the colony of Quebec in 1608 he established elaborate gardens where he sowed French seeds he had brought with him and experimented with indigenous plants that he found in nearby fields and forests Following Champlain s example fellow colonists nurtured similar gardens through the Saint Lawrence Valley and Great Lakes region In A Not So New World Christopher Parsons observes how it was that French colonists began to learn about Native environments and claimed a mandate to cultivate vegetation that did not differ all that much from that which they had left behind As Parsons relates colonists soon discovered that there were limits to what they could accomplish in their gardens The strangeness of New France became woefully apparent for example when colonists found that they could not make French wine out of American grapes They attributed the differences they discovered to Native American neglect and believed that the French colonial project would rehabilitate and restore the plant life in the region However the more colonists experimented with indigenous species and communicated their findings to the wider French Atlantic world the more foreign New France appeared to French naturalists and even to the colonists themselves Parsons demonstrates how the French experience of attempting to improve American environments supported not only the acquisition and incorporation of Native American knowledge but also the development of an emerging botanical science that focused on naming new species Exploring the moment in which settlers missionaries merchants and administrators believed in their ability to shape the environment to better resemble the country they left behind A Not So New World reveals that French colonial ambitions were fueled by a vision of an ecologically sustainable empire

Measuring the New World Neil Safier,2024-05-31 Prior to 1735 South America was terra incognita to many Europeans But that year the Paris Academy of Sciences sent a mission to the Spanish American province of Quito in present day Ecuador to study the curvature of the earth at the Equator Equipped with quadrants and telescopes the mission's participants referred to the transfer of scientific knowledge from Europe to the Andes as a sacred fire passing mysteriously through European astronomical instruments to observers in South America By taking an innovative interdisciplinary look at the traces of this expedition Measuring the New World examines the transatlantic flow of knowledge from West to East Through ephemeral monuments and geographical maps this book explores how the social and cultural worlds of South America contributed to the production of European scientific knowledge during the Enlightenment Neil Safier uses the notebooks of traveling philosophers as well as specimens from the expedition to place this particular scientific endeavor in the larger context of early modern print culture and the emerging intellectual category of scientist as author

Performative Polemic Kathrina Ann LaPorta, 2021-06-21 Performative Polemic is the first literary historical study to analyze the war of words unleashed in the pamphlets denouncing Louis XIV's absolute monarchy between 1667 and 1715 As conflict erupted between the French ruler and his political enemies pamphlet writers across Europe penned scathing assaults on the Sun King's bellicose impulses and expansionist policies This book investigates how pamphlet writers challenged the monarchy's monopoly over the performance of sovereignty by contesting the very mechanisms through which the crown legitimized its authority at home and abroad Author Kathrina LaPorta offers a new conceptual framework for reading pamphlets as political interventions asserting that an analysis of the pamphlet's form is crucial to understanding how pamphleteers seduced readers by capitalizing on existing markets in literature legal writing and journalism Pamphlet writers appeal to the theater-going public that would have been attending plays by Molière and Racine as well as to readers of historical novels and periodicals Pamphleteers entertained readers as they attacked the performative circuitry behind the curtain of monarchy
