for the time of today's students youth services librarians have an especially challenging job. How can they reach their target audience? One of the surest ways is the promotion through the local school system of a series of class visits to the public library. But where to begin? Choosing a grade level, contacting school officials and teachers and planning age appropriate programs are among the many steps that librarians must take but may feel unprepared for. Encouraging the collaboration of professionals in public libraries and local schools, this comprehensive guide presents a detailed framework for a versatile program of class visits. Written by two public librarians with firsthand experience, it describes in a step by step format how to accomplish a structured series of class visits. The book addresses procedures, planning and implementation and offers suggestions for both elementary and secondary school visits. Informational packets and other print materials are provided for each level. Possible challenges are discussed with thoughts on their impact on the overall program and ways to find workable solutions. The appendices contains easily adaptable templates including sample schedules, letters to teachers and evaluation forms.

Pulling together recommendations from a wide range of international sources, this book builds upon 20 years of research evidence highlighting the importance of parent involvement and engagement. Bishop also brings his own broad experiences from a 32 year career in primary education as a teacher, school leader, consultant and trainer to bear on the many challenges facing schools as they seek to welcome, encourage, inform and support those whose children they educate. Detailed case studies from six carefully selected schools with which Bishop has worked as a consultant exemplify some of the most successful techniques and programmes currently in use to facilitate parent partnership.
