

MAPPING THE OCEAN FLOOR

OVERVIEW

During this lesson, students participate in a simulation of the pre-war method of mapping underwater terrain.

OBJECTIVES

Following completion of this lesson, the students will be able to:

- Develop the understanding that the bottom structure of underwater habitats can be mapped.

- Describe something they cannot see through the collection and correlation of accurate data.

- Understand how technology can be applied as a tool for problem-solving.

GRADE LEVELS

4th - 12th grades

NGCC STANDARDS

Science Indicators:
S.1, S.3, S.4, S.5, S.6, S.7, S.10

MATERIALS

For each student group you will need:

- A large Styrofoam cooler, one permanent marker, bricks, rocks, sand or gravel, two strings marked at 1 cm intervals.
- 2 metal nuts or washers for weights.
- Two metric rulers (a yard long each).
- One data sheet for each pair of students.

Note: Preparing coolers.

1. Before class, write north, south, east, and west on the sides of the coolers so the students' data sheet maps will all have the same orientation.
2. Using the permanent marker, draw lines one-centimeter apart on the outside lip of the top of the cooler. Label with a, b, c's going north and south and 1, 2, 3's east to west across the cooler.
3. Modify and copy the attached data sheet to correspond to the size of the students' coolers.
4. In the cooler on the bottom, place a variety of objects (rocks, bricks, sand or gravel) to simulate a varied underwater terrain.
5. Once prepared, place the cooler on a table or other surface high enough up so students cannot see into the cooler and view the bottom.
