

Authenticating and Authorizing Users with External Directories

External directories store user credentials and authorizations in a central location (LDAP-compliant directory, such as OID, OUD, and OVD).

- Eases administration through centralization
- Enables single-point authentication
- Eliminates the need for client-side wallets

Example:

- User changes job roles.
- Security administrator changes the user roles in Oracle Virtual Directory.
- No changes are made to the services that the user accesses.
