INTRODUCTION

BRIEF BIOGRAPHY OF JUDITH GUEST

Guest graduated from the University of Michigan in 1958 and became a grade-school teacher shortly thereafter. Though she has been writing since the age of eleven, Guest claims to have completed very few pieces until she entered a short story-writing contest in 1970. Shortly thereafter, she stopped aside from teaching to "concentrate on finishing something"; the result was Ordinary People, a short story that eventually grew into her first novel after three years of work. Published in 1976, the novel was awarded the Janet Heidinger Kafka Prize the same year. Guest has since written two more novels, in addition to several short stories and non-fiction pieces. She currently lives in the Twin Cities region of Minnesota.

RELATED LITERARY WORKS

Ordinary People is one of the many psychological novels to emerge from the 60s and 70s. Books like Exorcist by William (1976) appeared at a time when psychiatry was gaining interest in mainstream America as a culture. At about the same time, "youthful rebellion" for young adults was coming into its own. While Guest's novel was not explicitly written or marketed as a book for young adults, the presence of complex teen-aged characters put it on par with novels such as Judith by Wesley and Catcher in the Rye.

EXTRA CREDIT

From Page to Screen. Ordinary People was adapted into a film in 1980. Directed by Robert Redford and starring Donald Sutherland and Mary Taylor Moore, the film eventually won four Academy Awards—including the year's title for Best Picture.

Text Not to Handle? Ordinary People's challenging content is not without its critics. The American Library Association lists the novel as one of the 100 books "most frequently challenged" between 1990 and 2014, making it a member of many Banned Books Week reading lists.

PLOT SUMMARY

The Jarretts are a well-to-do family who live near Chicago. Calvin (Cal) Jarrett, an attorney, and his wife Beth Jarrett have two sons, Jordan (Senior, known as Buck) and Conrad. Tragically strikes the family one summer when the eldest, Buck, dies in a sailing accident. Conrad feels personally responsible for his brother's death, and after a gradual spiral into depression, he tries to commit suicide by slashing his wrists. Thankfully, Cal and Beth find him in the bathroom before he dies. They eventually commit him to a mental hospital, where he stays for eight months.

The novel begins one month after Conrad's release from the hospital. Cal has arranged for Conrad to start seeing a therapist named Dr. Tyrone Berger, yet he finds it difficult to get through each day. Spending time with his friends and swimming teammate Lenny, Willem, Brian, Gerald, and Glen-Burner seems to help constantly. In class practice he meets a new student named Joanne Pratt, whom he finds to be stunningly beautiful. He realizes that swimming no longer gives him the joy he once experienced. Most significantly, his relationship with Beth is strained; they hardly speak to one another, as Beth avoids him as much as possible.

Conrad visits Berger for the first time. The psychiatrist's appearance, attitude, and approach alarm little Conrad, but they agree to meet twice a week. The sessions come at an awkward time for the Jarretts, who find it difficult to navigate their family situation. Beth is annoyed when Cal mentions Conrad's therapy sessions at a party. Berger advises Conrad to loosen his grip on his emotions. Meanwhile, an old friend from the hospital named Karen, contradicts Berger's advice. And with the exception of Lenny, Conrad's friends offer little help at all. Some relief comes with quitting the swim team in order to make room for his meetings with Berger.

As Christmas approaches, though things begin to look up for Conrad. He makes progress with Berger, and his relationship with Joanne begins to blossom. Unfortunately, some news
