Name: _____ Date: _____

Layers of the Atmosphere: An Exploration

The Earth's atmosphere is divided into five layers, each with unique characteristics. Understanding these layers is essential for grasping how our planet's environment works.

Troposphere: The lowest layer, extending from the surface to an altitude of about 10-12 km. It is where most weather occurs and where we live. Temperature decreases as altitude increases.

Stratosphere: The second layer, extending from the top of the troposphere to about 50 km. It contains the ozone layer, which absorbs and scatters the sun's ultraviolet radiation. Temperature increases with altitude.

Mesosphere: The third layer, extending from the top of the stratosphere to about 85 km. It is the coldest layer, with temperatures dropping to their lowest point. Most meteors burn up in this layer.

Thermosphere: The fourth layer, extending from the top of the mesosphere to about 600 km. It is the hottest layer, with temperatures rising sharply due to the absorption of high-energy solar radiation. The aurora borealis and aurora australis occur in this layer.

Exosphere: The outermost layer, extending from the top of the thermosphere into space. It is the least dense layer and contains very few molecules.
