Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the cardiovascular and muscular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week. The control group did not exercise. The subjects were tested at baseline and at the end of the 12-week program. The exercise group showed significant improvements in cardiovascular and muscular fitness compared to the control group. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can improve cardiovascular and muscular fitness in sedentary middle-aged men.
