Organising For Growth Theories And Practices:

Organising for Growth: Theories and Practices Francesca Visintin, D. Pittino, G. Lauto, P. A. M. Mazzurana, 2014-12-06 The issue of organisational growth is increasingly crucial in the current economic landscape for most European countries in particular given the need to recover competitiveness through stronger companies especially in strategically relevant industries and to capture immediate advantages in terms of job generation As recently pointed out by the Economist Europe produces plenty of corner shops hairdressers and so on What it doesn't produce enough of is innovative companies that grow quickly and end up big Therefore the attention of scholars entrepreneurs managers and policy makers should shift from an emphasis on start ups and micro businesses towards established small medium companies with the potential to grow Organisational growth is a multifaceted topic dealing with various relevant issues such as growth meanings and measures growth determinants and explanatory factors supportive contexts interplays between company level and economic system growth characteristics of growing and fast growing organisations the relationship between economic growth and social cultural development Organising for growth is at the same time an area of scientific inquiry where organisational scholars can make a distinctive contribution to national and European competitiveness and a call to reflect on the current state and future perspectives of the community of organisational scholars

Sustainable food planning: evolving theory and practice André Viljoen, 2023-09-04 Half the world's population is now urbanised and cities are assuming a larger role in debates about the security and sustainability of the global food system Hence planning for sustainable food production and consumption is becoming an increasingly important issue for planners policymakers designers farmers suppliers activists business and scientists alike The rapid growth of the food planning movement owes much to the unique multi functional character of food systems In the wider contexts of global climate change resource depletion a burgeoning world population competing food production systems and diet related public health concerns new paradigms for urban and regional planning capable of supporting sustainable and equitable food systems are urgently needed This book addresses this urgent need By working at a range of scales and with a variety of practical and theoretical models this book reviews and elaborates definitions of sustainable food systems and begins to define ways of achieving them Four different themes have been defined as entry points into the discussion of sustainable food planning These are 1 urban food governance 2 integrating health environment and society 3 urban agriculture 4 planning and design This is an important compilation on a timely topic It brings together the work of planners and designers from both sides of the Atlantic and challenges us to think about how to create food systems that deliver healthy just and sustainable communities and vital places The book moves dexterously between the grassroots and policy halls and draws valuable lessons for theory and practice Dr Kami Pothukuchi Department of Urban Studies Planning Wayne State University To address the problems of urban food production we need to look at the city in a completely different way This timely book will act as an important source for those who have an ethical interest not only in food but in improving the quality and justice of life in our city communities Prof Flora Samuel School of Architecture University of Sheffield and member of Royal Institute of British Architects Research and Development Committee This publication provides a lot of food for thought not just for persons professionally involved in the food sector and officials dealing with national food policies but especially for local and regional authorities urban planners and architects NGOs and community based organisations health and environmental officers and concerned consumers Against the background of the growing awareness of the elevated social health and ecological costs of the mainstream globalized agri food system this book analyses the emergence of a new vision and many initiatives that seek to reconnect sustainable production with sustainable consumption Hence the book delivers what is promised in its title it discusses new concepts related to food and sustainable urban regional planning based on a critical review of innovative practices at various levels Ir Henk de Zeeuw Director RUAF Foundation For those who work to address the future challenges facing city development this book is a must Why Because today practitioners and professionals are being asked to understand urban food production within a social economic and ecological context This book shows us how these connections are being made The chapters are accessible and fascinating and will help beginners and experts to deal with food production in their everyday work Dr Carlo W Becker bgmr Landscape Architects Berlin Leipzig and Technical Universit

UNDERSTANDING ORGANISATIONS MADHUKAR

SHUKLA,2008-06-03 Organisations play a crucial role in our day to day life though most of us are unaware of it They permeate and pervade almost all aspects of our lives and their significance cannot therefore be overemphasized This easy to read and compact book on Organisational Theory OT gives an account of what an organisation is and how it operates It shows that organisations are not static entities but are dynamic capable of growing changing failing or transforming themselves The book begins with a discussion on the perspectives and approaches needed for understanding designing and changing organisations It then goes on to give a description of the building blocks and the various influences that determine organisational design The author rightly emphasizes that the ideal organisation is one that is adaptive to a specific situation He tells not only what an organisation is but shows how it functions for instance how decisions are taken how conflicts and power interact in moulding an organisation how values and norms influence performance and so on Finally the author stresses how organisations change or are transformed or why some do not change and highlights emerging issues in organisational design What distinguishes the text is its Indian background The author skillfully elucidates organisational theory with real life examples from well known Indian Organisations Intended as a textbook for the students of Management this study should also be ideal for practising managers consultants and teachers

The Concept of Enterprise

Architecture from Theory to Practice Tiko Iyamu,2023-12-06 Even though the field of enterprise architecture EA has matured many organisations still struggle with its development and implementation particularly those organisations involved in continuous transformational cycles and subjected to different environmental trends This book is intended to assist organisations in getting a grip on the factors influencing EA implementation and gaining a deeper understanding of why things happen the way they do in the practice of EA It is a comprehensive and definitive resource that is useful to both business professionals and academics The book presents an approach for the development implementation or institutionalisation of EA that is independent of any method or other architecture frameworks It can be applied directly using a realistic selection of organizational variables The approach has two distinctive features that support EA even in complex environments From both technical and non technical perspectives it identifies influencing factors and how they manifest in the practice of EA in an organization It offers linear and practical mechanisms for developing and implementing EA to fortify the practice of the concept in an organisation This approach represents a significant contribution to EA Starting with descriptions for EA the book offers deepened models and frameworks for the development and implementation of EA at the domain level It also covers factors upon which a model is built for the institutionalisation of the concept Additionally the book discusses the implications of EA for sponsors architects and other stakeholders responsible for EA development implementation and institutionalisation

Mind, Body, Soul and Spirit in Transactional Analysis Gordon Law, 2006 Relationships may be understood as the contact that emerges from observable social roles underpinned by inter personal attitudes Using transactional analysis and other approaches this book presents a series of models based on an analysis of the relationships that are created when contact between people links imagos and roles to confirm existential life positions. Because the models provide a meta level framework for understanding and influencing any sequence of interaction irrespective of setting or TA specialism they give ample scope for practitioners to exercise widely differing preferences techniques and strategies for interacting with clients in ways that encompass a transpersonal or a spiritual view of relationships.

Action Research in Organisations Jean McNiff, Jack Whitehead, 2002-01-04

The current orthodoxy is that knowledge is the most powerful resource for organisational success. So how can managers develop the appropriate knowledge base to make their organisations grow? The answer lies in action research. Action research is increasingly perceived and used as a powerful methodology to promote professional awareness and development. However there are very few texts that demonstrate how this can be utilised to promote management and organisational improvement or that emphasise the reflective nature of improving professionalism. Action Research in Organisations fills this gap. Aimed at both practising managers and university students alike, key features of this title include the location of management and organisational theory within a framework, examination of the principles and practice of action research, real world examples and case studies of people attempting to improve their own situations through action research.
