Secondary School Teaching and Educational Psychology David Galloway, Anne Edwards, 2014-01-21 A companion volume to Primary School Teaching and Educational Psychology this book concerns itself with the day to day business of teaching in a secondary school Throughout the book four themes reoccur that teachers can best understand the development of children by observing their learning and their relationships within school that assessment and evaluation are integral to effective teaching that effective teaching and learning depend on both teacher and child being able to monitor own progress and to find solutions to problems that occur and finally that there must be explicit recognition of the common ground between educational psychology and other disciplines such as sociology philosophy and the history of education Primary School

Why Do Teachers Need to Know About Psychology? Jeremy Monsen, Lisa Marks Woolfson, James Boyle, 2021-01-28 As a teacher what are my personal social and emotional responsibilities in supporting pupils with psychological development Psychology has underpinned educational practice since its inception but understanding what that means in practical terms for educational settings today can seem bewildering. The team draw upon the whole field covering not only developmental health and educational child psychology but also organisational and counselling perspectives. Drawing on examples from rural early years settings to large urban secondary schools, this book looks at how psychology can support your teaching practice. It does this by looking at different situations within a teacher's roles and responsibilities and what this also means for understanding their professional identity. Expertly crafted by Jeremy Mosen, Lisa Marks Woolfson and James Boyle, bringing together the expertise of a team of practitioners and psychologists, this book draws together the latest research and current practice. The team also support you to consider and develop your own views, beliefs and values and explores why it is your responsibility as an educator to make use of psychology not only to ensure the best possible opportunities for children and young people but also for your own growth in your professional journey.

Educational Objectives and the Teaching of Educational Psychology Edgar Stones, 2012. The purpose of this book is to promote discussion about educational objectives generally and objectives in the teaching of educational psychology in particular. To this end, Part 1 contains a review of the literature concerned with these two subjects and also reports on investigations into the views of British students, teachers, college staffs and educational psychologists on the question of the objectives of educational psychology in teacher preparation. A comprehensive bibliography is provided. A further important section of Part 1 proposes a method of systematizing teaching objectives and suggests a heuristic device for the generation of objectives at different levels of conceptual generality and complexity of learning. An example of this model in the field of educational psychology is presented which illustrates the general approach to the generation of teaching objectives and proposes a specific approach to the production of teaching objectives in educational psychology. In Part 2, a selection of readings in the fields of objectives and educational psychology provides the reader with some of the key source material referred to in Part 1. As well as being a valuable and stimulating addition to the current debate on the specifying of educational objectives, the arguments in this book about the role of educational psychology in teacher preparation raise some fundamental questions for those concerned with teacher education.

Teachers too frequently complain of lessons being disrupted by unacceptable behaviour and yet the important skills of effective classroom management are seldom mentioned in initial teacher training. The authors argue that the answer lies in positive teaching and show how by accentuating the positive and being more sensitive in their interactions with children and young people in schools teachers can build less stressful and more effective teaching and learning environments
