and succeed in today's society they must also be able to exercise critical awareness over what they read. But how do you cultivate comprehension and help kids sharpen their analytical skills? The answer, writes Barbara King Shaver, lies in thinking outside the book by studying texts in tandem. In When Text Meets Text, King Shaver lays out rationales and strategies for using an approach called intertextuality where a reading of carefully paired texts increases students' grasp of content while honing their command of crucial critical tools. Making connections among texts, students delve deeper into each by observing similarities and differences in literary characteristics such as syntax, plot, character, and structure, propelling them toward greater meaning. Making King Shaver presents the research supporting intertextual instruction techniques for adding it to your curriculum, suggestions for a wide array of books to teach together, and best of all, practical ideas for units of study covering key aspects of teaching literature, including genre, theme, author, archetypes. Find an exciting new way to build literature connections in your classroom as you extend the comprehension abilities of your students. Read Barbara King Shaver's When Text Meets Text and find out why two texts are better than one. School Library Journal, 2005 El-Hi Textbooks & Serials in Print, 2000, 2000 Books In Print 2004-2005 Ed.
