G541: Psychological Investigations - Medium banded Candidate style answer

Introduction

OCR has produced these candidate style answers to support teachers in interpreting the assessment criteria for the new GCE specifications and to bridge the gap between new specification release and availability of exemplar candidate work.

This content has been produced by senior OCR Examiners, with the input of Chairs of Examiners, to illustrate how the sample assessment questions might be answered and provide some commentary on what factors contribute to an overall grading. The candidate style answers are not written in a way that is intended to replicate student work but to demonstrate what a "good" or "excellent" response might include, supported by Examiner's commentary and conclusions.

As these responses have not been through full moderation and do not replicate student work, they have not been graded and are instead, banded "medium" or "high" to give an indication of the level of each response.

Please note that this resource is provided for advice and guidance only and does not in any way constitute an indication of grade boundaries or endorsed answers.

A researcher has conducted an experiment to see if people recall more words from a list of ten words when they learn and recall in the same room rather than in one room and recall in a different room. This was an independent measures design

The results were as follows:

Number of words recalled	Recall in same room	Recall in different room
	9	2
	8	6
	8	8
	7	6
	7	7
	6	9

1 (a) Suggest an appropriate null hypothesis for this experiment.

[4]

Candidate style answer	Examiner's commentary
There is no difference between recall in the same room and recall in a different room. Any differences are due to chance.	Reference to the DV is vague here (recall of what?)
