

INCIDENT REPORTS

Function/Purpose

An incident report is not part of the patient's chart, but it may be used later in litigation. A report has two functions:

1. It informs the administration of the incident so management can prevent similar incidents in the future.
2. It alerts administration and the facility's insurance company to a potential claim and the need for investigation.

Regulations issued under OSHA require all employers with more than ten employees at any time during the previous calendar year to maintain records of recordable occupational injuries and illnesses.

When To Report

Incidents that must be reported and documented include:

1. Exposure Incidents: skin, eye, mucous membrane or parental contact with blood or other potentially infectious materials that may result from the performance of an employee's duties.
2. Accident, Injury: patient, visitor, employee slips or falls, or other incident, which results or may result in injury.
3. Event, Behaviors, or Actions: incidents that are unusual, contrary to agency policy or procedure or which may result in injury.
4. Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System: reaction to vaccine administered at agency (use VAERS form, instructions and sample in Immunization section).
5. Medication reaction: reaction to any drug administered at or provided by health department. Complete Adverse Drug Reaction Form. For more information, call 1-800-332-1088.
6. Property damage or missing articles.
7. Administration of wrong medication or vaccine.
8. Improper administration of medication or vaccine.

OSHA Recordkeeping Requirements

OSHA 300 Log-recordable and nonrecordable injuries are distinguished by the treatment provided, i.e., if the injury required medical treatment, it is recordable; if only first aid was required, it is not required, it is not recordable. However, medical treatment is only one of several criteria for determining recordability. Regardless of treatment, if the injury involved loss of consciousness, restriction of work or motion, transfer to another job or termination of employment, the injury is recordable. An explanation, with examples, is included on the backside of the OSHA 300 Form.
