- At standard atmospheric conditions, all molecules have the same average speed.

Table 1: Representation of particles in different phases.

	Solid	Liquid	Gas
How are the particles arranged?	Particles are packed closely together in a regular, repeating pattern. The particles are in contact with each other.	Particles are packed closely together in a disordered, repeating pattern. The particles are in contact with each other.	Particles are widely spaced and move rapidly in all directions. The particles are not in contact with each other.
How do the particles move?	Particles vibrate in place. They have a fixed position and can only move a small distance from their equilibrium position.	Particles move more freely than in the solid state. They can move past each other, but they are still in contact with each other.	Particles move very rapidly in all directions. They have a high average speed and are constantly colliding with each other and the walls of the container.
