What hormones are involved in the maintenance of blood sugar?

Why?

The body needs a constant supply of glucose for its energy. The pancreas has the ability to release more glucose when needed. Blood glucose levels are kept at a constant level by the release of glucose from the liver. The liver stores glucose in the form of glycogen. When glucose levels are low, the liver releases glucose into the blood. The pancreas also releases insulin, which helps the body use glucose more effectively. The pancreas also releases glucagon, which helps the liver release more glucose into the blood.
