

PokéSCIENCE

Taking a look at the reality behind some Pokémon abilities.

#006: Charizard

"It spits fire that is hot enough to melt boulders."
[Pokémon Red/Blue Pokédex entry]

On average, the temperature it would take to melt stone into magma would be between about 1300°-2600° Fahrenheit (~700°-1300° Celsius). At about this temperature, the human body in its entirety would melt as well.

#008: Wartortle

"It is said to live 10,000 years."
[Pokémon Diamond/Pearl/Platinum Pokédex entry]

Approximately 10,000 years ago, the Ice Age ended, agriculture was first being widespread, and the first human settlements were being built. A Wartortle alive today could've been alive since prehistoric times.

#018: Pidgeot

"This Pokémon flies at Mach 2 speed, leaving prey."
[Pokémon Yellow Pokédex entry]

Mach 2 is twice the speed of sound, which normally equates to approximately 1,500 miles per hour (supersonic, 2,500 kmph), or about 1,150 feet per second (350 meters per second). Planes traveling at these supersonic speeds are made of special metals that won't melt at this speed.

#059: Arcanine

"Arcanine is known for its high speed. It is said to be capable of running over 6,200 miles in a single day and night."
[Pokémon Ruby/Sapphire Pokédex entry]

This would mean Arcanine would need to run about 260 miles per hour (418 kmph), or about 350 feet per second (115 meters per second). For 24 hours straight, 6,200 miles is longer than the distance from L.A. to Moscow.

#020: Raticate

"Grows on anything with its tough fangs. It can even topple concrete buildings by gnawing on them."
[Pokémon Gold Pokédex entry]

Normal concrete has the strength to withstand up to 10,000 psi (35 square inch) pressure. The living animal with the strongest bite force is the crocodile, with a bite that can exert approximately 5,000 psi of pressure. Raticate would need to have a bite at least twice as strong as that, considering.

#068: Machop

"Its truly amazingly developed arms can launch a flurry of 1,000 punches in just two seconds."
[Pokémon FireRed Pokédex entry]

Assuming Machop is using all four of its hands, this would mean 250 punches in two seconds, 125 punches in one second, or one punch every 0.008 seconds. That would be about 37-and-a-half punches with one arm in the time it takes a person to blink an eye.

#107: Hitmonchan

"It throws punches that are faster than a bullet train."
[Pokémon FireRed Pokédex entry]

Most bullet trains run an average speed of about 300 kilometers per hour (about 186 mph). Taking Hitmonchan's size into consideration, this means it could probably throw a single punch in about 0.005 seconds. The world record for human punching measured about one punch in 0.0765 seconds, almost nine times slower than that.

#184: Azumarill

"It can spend all day in water, since it can inhale and store a large volume of air."
[Pokémon Platinum Pokédex entry]

The sperm whale can hold its breath for two hours, but other whales can only hold it for up to three hours. The only animal with lungs, Azumarill can hold its breath eight times that of a crocodile, and twelve times that of a sperm whale.

#246: Larvitar

"It feeds on soil. After it has eaten a large mountain, it will fall asleep so it can grow."
[Pokémon Gold Pokédex entry]

Theoretically, the amount of dirt it would take to equal the size of a large mountain about 20,000 ft (6096 meters) tall could require as much as 4,410,000,000 pounds (2,000,000,000 kg), or 2,205,000 short tons of dirt. The world's largest mountain, Mt. Everest, is about 29,029 feet (8848 meters) tall, and would have a volume more than twice that amount.

#257: Blaziken

"Blaziken has incredibly strong legs - it can easily clear a 30-story building in one leap."
[Pokémon Sapphire Pokédex entry]

On average, a single story is between 10-13 feet (3-4 meters) tall. That would mean Blaziken could make a vertical leap of over 300-390 feet (90-120 meters)—more than sixty times its height.

#293: Whismur

"Its cries equal a jet plane in volume."
[Pokémon Emerald Pokédex entry]

Hearing can be damaged by sustained exposure to 90dB (decibels) sound (about as loud as heavy traffic). At 125dB, pain is felt (about as loud as a pneumatic drill). At 140dB, permanent hearing damage can occur with short term exposure. At 180dB, complete death of hearing tissue occurs. The sound of a jet engine measures about 140dB from 100 meters (about 328 feet). At close range with no protection, it could burst the eardrums.

#361: Snorunt

"It is said that a home visited by a Snorunt will prosper. It can withstand cold of minus150 degrees Fahrenheit."
[Pokémon FireRed/LeafGreen Pokédex entry]

The lowest temperature ever recorded on Earth is -129° Fahrenheit (-91° Celsius). The human body at its absolute best can survive long past -60° Fahrenheit (-60° Celsius) without being killed, when the moisture in the moisture in the lungs begins to freeze.

#435: Skuntank

"It sprays a vile-smelling fluid from the tip of its tail to attack. Its range is over 160 feet."
[Pokémon Diamond Pokédex entry]

A real skunk can spray its fluid with accuracy up to 16 feet (5 meters). Skuntank can launch the fluid ten times this distance, 160 feet is the width of a regulation football field.

#321: Walidor

"By inhaling to its maximum capacity, a Walidor can dive close to 30,000 feet beneath the waves."
[Pokémon Emerald Pokédex entry]

10,000 feet (about 3048 meters) underwater, there would be more than two tons of water pressure on top of you, equal to more than 500 atmospheric pressures. The temperature that far down usually ranges from 37-39° Fahrenheit (3-4° Celsius), and there is almost no light. The sperm whale, which can dive deeper than any other whale, can barely get close to this depth. However, a sperm whale weighs as much as 45 short tons (41,000 kg) on average, while Walidor weighs 677.4 pounds (308 kg).

Conclusion: Pokémon are really freaking hax.

Lessig, 2018-11-15 There is not a single American awake to the world who is comfortable with the way things are So begins Lawrence Lessig's sweeping indictment of contemporary American institutions and the corruption that besets them We can all see it from the selling of Congress to special interests to the corporate capture of the academy Something is wrong It's getting worse And it's our fault What Lessig shows brilliantly and persuasively is that we can't blame the problems of contemporary American life on bad people as our discourse all too often tends to do Rather he explains We have allowed core institutions of America's economic social and political life to become corrupted Not by evil souls but by good souls Not through crime but through compromise Every one of us every day making the modest compromises that seem necessary to keep moving along is contributing to the rot at the core of American civic life Through case studies of Congress finance the academy the media and the law Lessig shows how institutions are drawn away from higher purposes and toward money power quick rewards the first steps to corruption Lessig knows that a charge so broad should not be levied lightly and that our instinct will be to resist it So he brings copious damning detail gleaned from years of research building a case that is all but incontrovertible America is on the wrong path If we don't acknowledge our own part in that and act now to change it we will hand our children a less perfect union than we were given It will be a long struggle This book represents the first steps
