The Monkeys

In a forest of Ecuador on South America, a monkey hangs in the trees. It holds its legs, curved like a hook, over a lower branch, while its hands grip the side of the branch above it at a time. The long legs of the monkey hold it in place as it swings its weight. Its paws, without sharp claws in the feet, grip the animal a powerful hold. This helps the monkey hold onto its branches.

Many people "fear" it moves slowly when it moves at all. The monkey moves a little faster than the trees. Since it can move slowly and hold onto the ground, it is not afraid. On the ground, the monkey moves with difficulty. But in "hanging" in the trees, it is the most of the time, eating and sleeping.
