How do light-dependent and light-independent reactions provide food for a plant?

Why?

Plants are the original solar panels. Through photosynthesis a plant is able to convert electromagnetic (light) energy into chemical energy. This energy is used not only to keep the plant alive, but also to sustain all creatures that rely on the plant for food and shelter. Plants and photosynthetic algae are also the source of all oxygen on Earth, allowing the inhabitants of Earth to benefit from our most plentiful renewable energy resource.

Model 1 – Chloroplast

1. Consider the organelle illustrated in Model 1.
  - a. What is the name of this organelle?
A chloroplast
  - b. Is this organelle more likely to be found in animal cells or plant cells?
Plant cell
2. The structures inside the organelle in Model 1 are called thylakoids. What compound necessary for photosynthesis is contained in the thylakoids?
Chlorophyll

The Leaf: A Platform for Performing Photosynthesis William W. Adams III, Ichiro Terashima, 2018-10-24 The leaf is an organ optimized for capturing sunlight and safely using that energy through the process of photosynthesis to drive the productivity of the plant and through the position of plants as primary producers that of Earth's biosphere It is an exquisite organ composed of multiple tissues each with unique functions working synergistically to 1 deliver water nutrients signals and sometimes energy rich carbon compounds throughout the leaf xylem 2 deliver energy rich carbon molecules and signals within the leaf during its development and then from the leaf to the plant once the leaf has matured phloem 3 regulate exchange of gasses between the leaf and the atmosphere epidermis and stomata 4 modulate the radiation that penetrates into the leaf tissues trichomes the cuticle and its underlying epidermis 5 harvest the energy of visible sunlight to transform water and carbon dioxide into energy rich sugars or sugar alcohols for export to the rest of the plant palisade and spongy mesophyll and 6 store sugars and or starch during the day to feed the plant during the night and or acids during the night to support light driven photosynthesis during the day palisade and spongy mesophyll Various regulatory controls that have been shaped through the evolutionary history of each plant species result in an incredible diversity of leaf form across the plant kingdom Genetic programming is also flexible in allowing acclimatory phenotypic adjustments that optimize leaf functioning in response to a particular set of environmental conditions and biotic influences experienced by the plant Moreover leaves and the primary processes carried out by the leaf respond to changes in their environment and the status of the plant through multiple regulatory networks over time scales ranging from seconds to seasons This book brings together the findings from laboratories at the forefront of research into various aspects of leaf function with particular emphasis on the relationship to photosynthesis

Dynamic model of leaf photosynthesis with acclimation to light and nitrogen J H M (John) Thornley,1998 A simple model of photosynthesis in a mature C<sub>3</sub> leaf is described based on a non rectangular hyperbola the model allows the high light asymptote of that equation P<sub>max</sub> to respond dynamically to light and nitrogen This causes the leaf light response equation to acclimate continuously to the current conditions of light and N nutrition which can vary greatly within a crop canopy and through a growing season with important consequences for gross production Predictions are presented for the dynamics of acclimation acclimated and non acclimated photosynthetic rates are compared and the dependence of leaf properties on light and N availability is explored There is good correspondence of predictions with experimental results at the leaf level The model also provides a mechanism for a down regulation of photosynthesis in response to increased carbon dioxide concentrations whose magnitude will depend on conditions particularly of nitrogen nutrition      Photosynthesis in Plant Communities and Individual Leaves as Influenced by Leaf Angle, Leaf Area Index, and Leaf Age Robert Brent Pearce,1966      The Relationship Between Leaf Cellular Architecture and Leaf-level Photosynthesis Alice Lydia Baillie,2017
