Annual Report of the Police Complaints Authority Great Britain. Police Complaints Authority, Peter Moorhouse, 1996-01-01 Ombudsmen Mary Seneviratne, 2002-09 Part of Butterworths Law in Context Series this is a description and evaluation of the UK public sector ombudsman system focusing on the Parliamentary Health Service and Local Government ombudsmen in England It also covers the public sector ombudsmen in Scotland Wales and Northern Ireland The Work of the Independent Police Complaints Commission Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Home Affairs Committee, 2010 Despite an ever increasing workload the IPCC does little to prevent complaints against police behaviour in the first instance by improving forces complaints procedures and despite a budget of 35 million per annum the organisation lacks clear measures of success Despite the IPCC possessing staff of around 400 people the vast majority of complaints against police behaviour are investigated by the force concerned Of the 30 000 plus complaints against police behaviour last year less than 250 were directly managed by the IPCC which represents less than 10 per cent of serious complaints In 99 cases out of 100 and despite the existence of an independent statutory body complaints made against police behaviour will be investigated by the police The Committee also raised concerns at the use of ex police officers within the IPCC these officers can often end up investigating possible ex colleagues in their former force The Home Affairs Committee is convinced that the police should be placing a much greater onus on resolving complaints in an open transparent and satisfactory manner themselves and calls upon the IPCC to produce a detailed plan of how the Commission working with bodies such as HMIC and NPIA will improve police performance in this area Encyclopedia of Law Enforcement Larry E Sullivan, 2005 Vols 1 and 2 cover U S law enforcement Vol 3 contains articles on individual foreign nations together with topical articles on international law enforcement Annual report and accounts of the Police Complaints Authority 1 April 2003 - 31 March 2004 Great Britain: Police Complaints Authority, 2005-08-04 The Police Complaints Authority PCA is an independent body set up under statute to give public confidence to the system for investigating complaints against the police by supervising investigations in allegations of police misconduct or incidents of public concern and reviewing evidence on referrals of police officers to misconduct hearings This is the last PCA report and accounts as it was replaced by a new body the Independent Police Complaints Commission in April 2004 Police

Complaints Authority Police Complaints Authority,2002 This annual report is published against the background of the Police Reform Bill which oversees the replacement of the Police Complaints Authority with a new body the Independent Police Complaints Commission This new body IPCC will have increased powers in terms of its investigative ability independently following up complaints or matters of conduct which were formerly investigated by the police themselves For the 2001 02 period the number of direct complaints against the police totalled 2 678 with 78% by males mainly white and aged between 25 and 44 with alcohol being a factor in 1 408 of these cases and 30% being unemployed Complainants from ethnic minority backgrounds consisted of 12% from the black community and 6% from the Asian representing 1 in 5 complainants in total There has been a 13% rise in people who have died in police care or custody from 32 to 36 of these 34 were white and 2 were black The PCA also shows a breakdown of the number of complaints against different police forces across the country For example the West Midlands Police Force have 7 432 police officers altogether with 618 complaints made against them in the 2001 02 period of which 55 94% of cases were dispensed with and 13 47% substantiated Police Complaints Authority Great Britain. Police Complaints Authority,2003 The Police Complaints Authority PCA is an independent body set up under statute to give public confidence to the system for investigating complaints against the police by supervising investigations in allegations of police misconduct or incidents of public concern and reviewing evidence on referrals of police officers to misconduct hearings The PCA is due to be replaced by a new body the Independent Police Complaints Commission in April 2004 This report and accounts covers the work of the PCA during the year 2002 03 Handbook of Policing, Ethics and Professional Standards Allyson MacVean,Peter Spindler,2012-12-20 Low confidence in the police and the increasing crime rates during the 1990s led to a series of government initiatives directed at changing both the structure and management of the police service In 2006 in an attempt to define what a principled police service should resemble the Home Office Minister Hazel Blears announced the development of new Code of Professional Standards for the police service informed by the Taylor Review of 2005 While there has been a growing awareness of the role of Professional Standards within law enforcement activity to date there has been little scholarly debate on the understanding of ethics and how that is applied to practical policing This book provides a single text of different perspectives on how professional standards and ethics has been conceptualised and developed into practical policing processes for the purposes of policing not only by the police but also by the partner agencies Leading academics and practitioners consider the moral minefield of policing through examinations of undercover operatives MI5 and deaths in police custody as well as looking forward to the future considerations and practices in professional conduct It will be of interest to those working within the field of policing as well as students and academics focussed on policing and criminal justice Department for Work and Pensions Great Britain.
