Tomorrow's Table Pamela C. Ronald, R. W. Adamchak, 2010-01-08 By the year 2050 Earth's population will double If we continue with current farming practices vast amounts of wilderness will be lost millions of birds and billions of insects will die and the public will lose billions of dollars as a consequence of environmental degradation Clearly there must be a better way to meet the need for increased food production Written as part memoir part instruction and part contemplation Tomorrow's Table argues that a judicious blend of two important strands of agriculture genetic engineering and organic farming is key to helping feed the world's growing population in an ecologically balanced manner Pamela Ronald a geneticist and her husband Raoul Adamchak an organic farmer take the reader inside their lives for roughly a year allowing us to look over their shoulders so that we can see what geneticists and organic farmers actually do The reader sees the problems that farmers face trying to provide larger yields without resorting to expensive or environmentally hazardous chemicals a problem that will loom larger and larger as the century progresses They learn how organic farmers and geneticists address these problems This book is for consumers farmers and policy decision makers who want to make food choices and policy that will support ecologically responsible farming practices It is also for anyone who wants accurate information about organic farming genetic engineering and their potential impacts on human health and the environment Asian Street Food
